Sihanouk Resists Push For Peace Talks

Colonist Wire Services

The Cambodian government, facing rebel attacks within 10 miles of the capital and withdrawal of U.S. bombing support in 40 days, said Friday it is ready to accept an immediate ceasefire and negotiate peace with deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The announcement by Foreign Minister Long Boret reversed all previous policy statements of the government of Marshal Lon Nol, who ousted Sihanouk March 18, 1970, in a move that launched the war in Cambodia.

However, in Peking, Sihanouk rejected the "trap" of negotiations with the United States and called for urgent aid in arms and ammunition from all the "friendly countries."

Speaking at a banquet here given by Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, Sihanouk launched a veritable declaration of war against one person — U.S. President Richard Nixon — whom he accused of wanting to "unjustly condemn to death the Khmer people" in the most massive bombardments of the Indochina war, bombardments being carried out in contempt of the American people and Congress.

Chou En-lai, who spoke before Sihanouk, condemned several times the "American aggression" in Cambodia, adding that "the Chinese and Cambodia peoples are companions at arms and brothers who share their good and ill fortune."

Chou added that he would never visit Washington until Nationalist Chinese diplomats had left.

Long Boret outlined a six-point peace plan in the presence of the entire diplomatic corps, including U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank, in the government palace in Phnom Penh. Outside the palace, rebel troops were pressing an attack within nine miles of Phnom Penh, and U.S. warplanes bombing for the 122nd consecutive day were raiding rebel positions so close to the capital that the thunder of their bombs rattled windows in the conference room and occasionally drowned out Long Boret's words.

The only condition in the government plan was that Sihanouk would be regarded in any negotiations as a spokesman for the Cambodian insurgents and not, as Sihanouk claims from exile to be, the legitimate head of the Cambodian government.

In other developments:

- In San Clemente, Nixon welcomed the latest proposal for peace in Cambodia and called in China's chief envoy to discuss ways Peking can help end the lingering war in Southeast Asia.

Huang Chen, who was flown to the Western White House aboard a presidential jet and given red carpet treatment, held a two-hour meeting with presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and then met with Nixon.

- In Washington, Defence Secretary James Schlesinger defended stepped-up American bombing of Cambodia and said Nixon may have to ask Congress for renewed bombing authority after the Aug. 15 cutoff date.
- Kissinger continued to leave open a possibility that he would meet with Sihanouk on his forthcoming visit to China.

Kissinger was asked by reporters if he took seriously statements in Peking by Sihanouk that he would not talk with Kissinger.

"That is almost inconceivable to me," Kissinger replied. He said he did not want to comment about Cambodian peace negotiations now in progress.

Viet Cong: Canada ICCS 'Snag'

Colonist Wire Services

HONG KONG — Nguyen Thi Binh, the foreign minister of the Viet Cong Provisional Revolutionary Government, has slammed Canada for "paralysing the International Commission of Control and Supervision," Radio Peking reported today.

In a note sent July 2 to the chairman of the ICCS, Mrs. Binh also charged that the Canadian delegation on the ICCS "has taken actions in contravention of the letter and spirit of the Paris agreement."

The Canadian actions, the note claimed, are aimed at "covering up the serious violations of the Paris agreement on Vietnam by the U.S. and the Saigon administration."

The note pointed out that since the signing of the joint communique in Paris on June 13, 1973, the ICCS had not held a single meeting to discuss the work of the ICCS regarding the implementation of the joint communique.

Quoting a report by the Viet Cong Giaiphong press agency, the radio said the note had demanded that "the Canadian delegation should end its act of paralysing the ICCS and that the ICCS should resume its sessions as soon as possible."

Mrs. Binh had pledged in the note that "the PRG has always been ready to help and co-operate with the ICCS. It will do the same in the future with a view to creating favorable conditions for the ICCS."

Socialists Wooing Business

VANCOUVER (CP) — In his first major policy speech since he was appointed provincial minister of industry eight weeks ago, lawyer Gary Lauk called on businessmen Friday to be unafraid of the socialists and join them in enhancing social justice in B.C.

The 32-year-old cabinet minister said the B.C. government would take a position in the private sector only where a region needed support and never where an area was already prospering under private business and industry.

Lauk said the recent acquisition by the government of Plateau Mills Ltd. of Vanderhoof was "supplementary and ancillary to our northwest B.C. development policy and was made necessary by the plans of private enterprise to withdraw from the area."

Hunt for Officers May Take 3 Days

SAIGON (CP) — Helicopters took off this morning for what may be a three-day search for two Canadian officers missing for 10 days in Viet Cong-controlled territory.

The hunt began with the blessing of the Viet Cong, whose spokesmen have insisted they do not know where Captains Ian Patten of Toronto and Fletcher Thomson of Ottawa are to be found.

The helicopters headed for the general area of Xuan Loc, and the searchers were expected first to visit the Viet Cong divisional headquarters there.

The searchers are expected to go to two other sites in the territory controlled by the communists before finally, on Monday, reaching the area where the officers disappeared.

Canadian authorities refused all comment and information about the search. They would not even say it had started.

The Viet Cong said Friday that safety agreements had been worked out and that a search could begin.

It was learned here that the searching helicopters are carrying two Canadian officers and two NCOs, two Hungarian Peace observers and at least three representatives of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government. It was not clear whether any South Vietnamese government representatives were aboard.

Hungary is chairman this month of the International Commission of Control and Supervision and joined the Canadians in negotiating arrangements for the search.

United States sources have said intelligence reports indicate Patten and Fletcher are within the Viet Cong area in which they disappeared and are being well treated.

They disappeared June 28 during a road trip from Xuan Loc, about 40 miles northeast of Saigon. The Canadians maintained the officers were on official duties for International Commission of Control and Supervision while the Viet Cong claimed they were not.

Your Fish 'n Chips Won't Go Meatless

Victoria's fish and chip lovers can relax—they should stilll be eating their favorite food for at least 30 days despite a strike by members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union that began throughout B.C. Friday.

That, at least, was the hopeful estimate from Edward Brady, president of the Van Isle Association of Fish Fryers.

He and fellow fish and chip shop owners went on a buying spree Thursday, stocking up on every piece of cod and halibut in sight.

Then they set off scrounging for freezer space.

They've loaded the fish into their own freezers. They've given shop assistants with freezers fish to take home and have called on friends and relatives, too, to make room for larger cuts. (See also Page 17.)

Bagged hashish, marijuana piled in Port Hardy RCMP office

All 20 Now Facing Narcotics Charges

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist Reporter

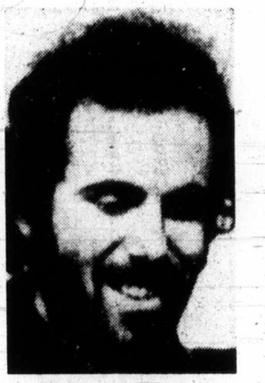
RCMP officials and federal prosecutors are now pressing two serious narcotics charges against the 20 persons arrested last weekend in northwest Vancouver Island waters in the Marysville-Gondola case.

A joint charge of conspiracy to possess cannabis resin, the legal name of hashish, for the purpose of trafficking was read against all 20 in Provincial Court at North Vancouver.

And a charge of conspiracy to import narcotics, already laid against the seven men aboard the Canadian fishboat Gondola, was broadened to include three of the men aboard the former U.S. minesweeper Marysville.

One of the three was Alexander Edward deRenzy, 37, skipper and owner of the Marysville and a well-known San Francisco blue movie maker.

The federal justice department's decision to go ahead with narcotics charges came only one day after the RCMP announced the discovery Wednesday of a big narcotics cache near where the Marysville and Gondola met for 2½ hours late June 29.



DeRenzy
. . . movie maker

It also meant the end of two Immigration Act charges in Victoria Provincial Court against the Marysville 13, one containing two counts of conspiracy to evade immigration rules and the other containing three counts of aiding in the commission of an offence against those rules.

The charges were withdrawn Friday morning by Judge William Ostler at the request of prosecutor Cecil Branson in a hearing that took less than two minutes.

The 13 then were ferried to North Vancouver by RCMP plane in two batches, the six women leaving the Victoria jail just before noon and the seven men leaving at 1:20 p.m.

Court sat late in North Vancouver so charges could be read to all accused in the presence of a battery of defence lawyers.

Four of those accused of conspiracy to import narcotics were granted bail of $5,000 and two sureties each. They were Andrew Dumyn, about 30, of Coal Harbor, B.C.; Brian Edwards Lewis, 21, Nanaimo; John Collin Thomson, 21, Vancouver; and

Currency Shuffle Rumored

FRANKFURT (AP) — The United States dollar hit new lows for the ninth consecutive day Friday, bringing turmoil to European exchanges and rumors of a new realignment of major currencies this weekend.

The head of the Swiss national bank said the monetary situation is out of control He asked how long the U.S. was prepared to "watch idly" the continued dollar slump without intervening in the market to buy dollars.

The value of a dollar dropped 3 per cent in 24 hours on the Zurich market, to a record low of 2.705 Swiss francs.

In Paris, it dropped through its pyschological barrier of four francs to an all-time low of 3.86 francs.

In West Germany, it fell so fast that several major Frankfurt banks halted dollar trading an hour early because they could find no buyers. The price was 2.24 to 2.26 German marks to $1, almost one mark less than at the beginning of the year, and nine pfennigs under Thursday.

This meant that U.S. travellers who, through most of the 1960s paid 25 cents for each mark, have to pay nearly 45 cents a mark.

On the London market, dealers reported that New York banks came into the market to sell huge amounts of dollars. There, the dollar strengthened slightly against the weak pound.

A new dollar devaluation, the third in 19 months, was ruled out in Washington by Paul Volcker, treasury undersecretary for monetary affairs.

Volcker said monetary markets "have overdone it recently" and undervalued the dollar. "I see a turnabout coming around. It's implicit in these exchange rates getting out of line."

An increase of interest rates in the U.S., announced Thursday, had favorable impact on the money market but this was wiped out as rumors of an impending dollar devalution spread.

West German banking informants said the market was talking about these realignment possibilities:

- The U.S. dollar to be devalued 6 per cent.
- The British pound ster-

Morrow Back on Case, Indians Whoop with Joy

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Treaty Indians of the Northwest Territories Friday won their case to have an outspoken northern judge, William Morrow, remain in control of a controversial case over claims to 400,000 square miles of land.

Federal Court Judge Frank Collier dismissed an application from the federal justice department for a writ of prohibition banning Morrow from continuing with the hearing into the Indians' claim.

The judgment brought a whoop of joy from a three-man team of lawyers representing the Indian Brotherhood of the N.W.T. It had been arguing that Morrow had jurisdiction over the case.

Morrow
. . . affront

The brotherhood had wanted its claim heard by a judge who was familiar with the peculiar situations and conditions in the north.

Morrow, as the sole member of the Supreme Court of the Northwest Territories, lives in Yellowknife and travels throughout the north to hear cases.

He had called the federal manoeuvre to oust him from the case an affront to his court and a "breach of constitutional etiquette" because one judge was set against another.

Morrow now has authority to resume hearings on schedule Monday into the Indians' claim to an interest in the land, in the mineral and energy-rich Mackenzie Valley.

She Digs That Park

MURFREESBORO, Ark. (UPI) — Mrs. Robert Bland of Arlington, Tex., paid $2 to dig around in the Crater of Diamonds state park. Officials said her find was "above average."

The 2.57-carat silver white diamond she extracted Friday was worth $2,500 when cut, a park official said.

English-Only Crew Causes Flight Delay

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Vancouver-bound Air Canada DC-9 with 94 passengers on board was delayed 30 minutes Thursday because 26 French-Canadian passengers refused to continue their flight without a French-speaking cabin attendant on board.

The French-speaking passengers had boarded the flight in Montreal, but the French-speaking crew was changed in Winnipeg.

When it became apparent that no member of the new cabin crew spoke French, the 26, who were bound for Calgary, demanded a French-speaking stewardess be brought aboard.

The aircraft's captain, who received the demand as the aircraft was taxiing toward the runway, elected to abort the takeoff and return to the terminal.

When it was discovered that no French-speaking stewardess was available, a French-speaking passenger agent joined the flight crew.

An airline spokesman said that some time ago Air Canada had given the federal government an undertaking that wherever possible, French-speaking personnel would be available at all Canadian points.

"It also stated that every effort would be made to serve passengers in their own language — English or French," the spokesman said.

However, he added, "where French is not — by any means — the language of the majority, the proportion of French-speaking employees to English-speaking employees is limited.

"We do our best, but in this instance a situation arose which was unfortunate — we're sorry it happened," he said.

Dollar Plummets, Devaluation Ruled Out

ling and Danish kroner to be devalued 10 per cent.

- Other European currencies jointly floating against the U.S. dollar would be revalued upward by 10 per cent. Seven European nations now are joined in the float.

Added to this were London rumors that the Australian dollar's value would be increased against its U.S. cousin and the Hong Kong dollar would be allowed to float. These rumors brought trading in Australian and Hong Kong dollars to a virtual halt in London.

French Finance Minister Giscard D'Estaing reiterated his government's opposition to a revaluation of the franc "either through market forces or through a decision."

In Copenhagen, banking sources said pressure on the Danish kroner had eased and devaluation was in no way imminent.

Monetary experts, unable to explain the dollar's continuing weakness in solid economic terms, have opted for political or psychological explanations.

At the head of the list is the Watergate affair, seen by some Europeans as paralysing President Nixon's ability to deal with inflation at home and the U.S. trade deficit abroad.

In Washington, however, Volcker, a member of the Nixon administration, said he didn't think it was the Watergate scandal but rather "a speculative situation" that was depressing the dollar.

The West German government showed no indication it is willing to do for the dollar what the U.S. government is not doing—providing intervention on the market to prop up the American currency.

Refused To Share Rescue Rope

Victims Caste to Death

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The Indian caste system cost 78 lives when passengers on a stranded bus refused to haul themselves to safety along the same rope.

The Hindustan Times reports a bus carrying 86 persons was trapped by flood waters last Monday near the town of Alwar, about 100 miles southwest of Delhi.

Karim Khan, a tea-stall owner, went to the resuce. He waded out to the bus with a rope which he had tied to a truck standing on highground.

He asked the passengers to haul themselves along the rope to safety.

But the passengers, who belonged to two different high-caste communities, refused to share the same rope and stayed in the bus.

The floodwaters rose and the bus was swept away, with the loss of 78 lives.

The story in the Hindustan Times carries the headline: They Died to Honor Caste.

Narcotics Charges Laid

Ralph Stanley Carpenter, 26, North Vancouver.

All the others were remanded in custody until Tuesday.

Final choice of charges had been held up while RCMP officers and Canadian Forces personnel scoured both sides of Quatsino Sound for a possible narcotics cache.

Wednesday evening, a corporal from CFB Holberg found a cache of about 800 pounds of hashish and 200 pounds of marijuana under a big log and clumps of mud 35 feet from the shoreline near the southern mouth of Quatsino Sound.

RCMP said earlier the Marysville and Gondola met the previous Friday night about two miles offshore from the northern mouth of the sound.

Police in a rented fishboat stopped the Gondola about 3:15 a.m. Saturday midway between Winter Harbor and Coal Harbor at the other end of the sound while the destroyer escort Mackenzie stopped the Marysville at 6 a.m. further down the coast.

The charge of conspiracy to import narcotics was read Saturday in Port Hardy against the Gondola seven — Dumyn; Lewis; Thomson; Carpenter; Kenneth Henry Carpenter, 26, North Vancouver, and Gary Lee Jackson, 21 and Dennis Wilcher II, 24, both believed to be Californians.

It was broadened Friday to include deRenzy, a resident of San Rafael, Calif.; Richard Joseph O'Brien, 48, San Francisco and George Roland Sonoda, 26, of Napali, Maui, Hawaii.

The other men aboard the Marysville were Richard Joseph Burgess, 29, Chicago; Frank Komarmy, 30, Forrest Knobs, Calif.; Glen Elton Davis, 26, Maui, Hawaii, and George Steven McDonald, 49, San Rafael.

The women were Carol Anne Maniscalco, 20, San Rafael; Diane Marie Maniscalco, 17, San Francisco; Regina Antonia Saisi, 20, Daly City, Calif.; Sandra Anne May, 23, Mill Valley, Calif.; Shelley Page Stevens, 19, San Rafael, and Joellen Leona Bal, 20, Napali, Maui, Hawaii.

Victoria court records showed deRenzy gave his occupation as photographer while Sonoda said he was a seaman and commercial diver and Kenneth Carpenter gave his employment as cook.

All the other men on both vessels said they were seamen while the women described themselves as seamen-cooks.

Court proceedings resulting from the biggest seizure of narcotics in B.C. history could take months or even years. In the meantime, said RCMP, the Marysville will remain at HMC Dockyard and the Gondola at Coal Harbor — both under federal seizure.

Eleven exotic birds, a rhesus monkey and a leopard cat will remain in quarantine at the Victoria SPCA. DeRenzy's secretary flew Wednesday to Victoria from San Francisco to take back an $800 baby gibbon ape.

Both ships are under constant guard while the bird and animal pets of the Marysville 13 are securely locked up at the SPCA.

Sgt. David Staples, head of the Vancouver Island RCMP drug squad, said Friday the investigation was still going on. He gave no details but said no additional arrests were expected in the near future.

Staples declined comment on the basis for his prediction last Sunday that 1,000 pounds of narcotics was involved in the Quatsino Sound search, a prediction that was right on the nose. However, it was known the RCMP, Canadian forces and U.S. Bureau of Narcotics started work on the case months ago after receiving information in the U.S.

Kidnapped VIP Held In Tent Inside House

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — United States business executive John Thompson, released by kidnappers after 18 days in captivity, told friends Friday he was confined in a tent inside a house.

Thompson, 50, managing director of the Argentine subsidiary of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., was released Thursday after his kidnappers were reported to have been paid a record $3 million in ransom.

He went immediately to the home of friends in a Buenos Aires suburb.

The money was handed over at a downtown hotel to a guerrilla and his companions took it in an armored car, informed sources said. The ransom was negotiated openly over a table at the hotel by the guerrilla and Firestone officials, the sources said.

MARTIN DISPUTES PAPERS

'No Advance Notice' About Viet Bombing

OTTAWA (UPI) — Former external affairs minister Paul Martin said Friday Canada had "no advance knowledge" in 1964 that the United States planned to bomb North Vietnam.

Previously unpublished portions of tne Pentagon Papers, made public Friday, said former prime minister Lester Pearson, Martin and other Canadian officials were informed on May 28, 1964 — nine months before the bombing — that the United States might bomb North Vietnam.

The papers, quoting various cables between U.S. officials, said the possibility of American bombing was part of a "carrot and stick" U.S. bargaining stance to be communicated to North Vietnam by Canadian diplomat Blair Seaborn.

Describing the May 28, meeting between Pearson and then-U.S. president Lyndon Johnson in New York City, one of the cables said the Canadian prime minister told Johnson he would "personally understand" if the United States were to bomb North Vietnam..

Asked if Canada was informed of the possibility of U.S. bombing against North Vietnam, Martin said, "We had no advance knowledge of any U.S. military plans."

"At no time did the United States consult us about its military plans in Vietnam. This is the first time I have heard this story about Mr. Pearson, and I do not believe that Mr. Pearson was ever told of the U.S. plans.

"If he had been, he certainly would not have condoned them, because we were against the war in Vietnam, as everyone knows."

Martin, now the government leader in the Canadian Senate, said he did not accept the account in the Pentagon Papers. "That is only the version of officials of the United States. It is certainly not the interpretation of the Canadian government."

Soldiers Herd Strikers

AP-Reuter

MONTEVIDEO — Troops dislodged striking workers from idle factories and descended on homes to force oil-refinery workers back to work, witnesses and labor leaders said Friday.

It was the toughest move so far by the military-dominated government to crush a general strike called 11 days ago to protest President Juan Bordaberry's dissolution of Congress June 27.

A fuel shortage threatened the country because of alleged sabotage and workers' abandonment of the country's only petroleum refinery.

Financial activities neared chaos as bank employees refused to work. Private and state banks, manned by supervisory personnel, provided minimal service.

There was no official announcement of the military moves, nor were there any reports broadcast by the radio stations.

Government officials declined comment on statements by the opposition National party that former congressmen Miguel Angel Galan, Guillermo Garcia Costa and Carlos Rodriguez Labruna had been arrested.

They are all members of the National faction led by former senator Wilson Ferreira Aldunate, who was narrowly defeated by Bordaberry in the 1971 presidential elections.

Going Out on Limb

Your Good Health

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a stroke six months ago. He doesn't have the use of his arm and can walk only with a cane.

He has therapy two days a week, an hour each time. We feel that is not enough therapy. What is your opinion?

He will not have sex relations for fear it will set him back in the use of him limbs. Is that correct?—Mrs. R.S.

As is often the case when I try to answer a letter, I wish I could have been an invisible little molecule, listeneing to what was said at some of these therapy sessions.

In cases of stroke, it is important to keep the paralysed or semi-paralysed muscles active; otherwise they wither and lose stength.

Two hours of therapy a week is quite reasonable — some doctors are reluctant to prescrube much more therapy than that simply because of the cost factor. It runs into money!

But it also has been my experience that therapists try to instill in patients the idea that the therapy sessions aren't enough by themselves. The patient should carry on between visits.

The "home therapy" doesn't have to be elaborate. It doesn't have to duplicate the therapy that is given twice a week. What it DOES require is simply that the patient use his semi-dormant muscles to the greatest extent than he is able.

The general rule is that if the patient has any motion at all in a limb, it needs to be used to the fullest extent possible.

As to the second question, about sex relations, the answer is no, it will not set him back. In fact, it probably will help him.

Police, Politicians

Extensive Bugging Revealed in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Exchanges between lawyer Robert Burns of the Parti Québecois and Liberal Justice Minister Jerome Choquette have disclosed extensive wire-tapping by Quebec police with what some observers describe as startling results.

Burns, the PQ house leader who has kept Choquette on the spot for three weeks with questions dealing with telephone tapes amassed by police, prompted the justice minister to reveal that politicians, including a now-deceased Liberal cabinet minister, are mentioned in "ultra-secret" files of a vast investigation of organized crime.

Burns told reporters that the report referred to an April 16, 1970, meeting, attended by two underworld figures and Pierre Laporte, then Liberal member for Chambly, as well as by a Liberal candidate and Liberal party organizer.

Laporte, who became labor minister after the 1970 election, was kidnapped and strangled in October, 1970, by terrorists.

Premier Robert Bourassa told the legislature Friday he had "no proof incriminating any member of the national assembly or minister" when he formed his cabinet.

But in an exchange about alleged links between Liberal politicians and organized crime, the premier refused to say whether any information short of proof had been submitted to him.

Bourassa said he does not consider it in the public interest to reveal anything about such information.

Burns' questioning was cut short by the Speaker but he later told reporters he was going to ask the premier if Choquette would be asked to resign.

Other recent disclosures of police wiretapping include:

- Tapes taken of telephone calls made by Jean-Jacques Saulnier, Montreal police chief;
- Tapes used at the police inquiry into organized crime which showed the extent of the underworld's involvement in gambling and other schemes;
- Electronic surveillance of policemen in their off hours which, one newspaper said, showed that 20 Montreal and provincial police officers were implicated with known prostitutes.

A police spokesman later said the officers under investigation were involved in nothing more than certain "frivolities."

For nearly three weeks, Burns and the Union Nationale house leader, Remi Paul, have kept Choquette on the spot, gradually forcing him into revealing the contents of police wiretaps.

Development Agency Head To Study African Drought

Gerin-Lajoie
. . . fact-finder

OTTAWA (UPI) — Paul Gerin-Lajoie, president of the Canadian International Development Agency, will go on a fact-finding mission to drought-stricken African nations Sunday, the agency announced Friday.

The six sub-Saharan nations involved are Senegal, Niger, Upper Volta, Mauritania, Mali and Chad. Drought, which began in the six countries five years ago, reached a peak this year, wiping out cattle herds and forcing nomadic herders into the cities and towns.

Stop-Redistribution Bill Rural MPs' Ploy: Tory

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to stop redistribution of federal electoral boundaries is a ploy by rural MPs who don't want urban voters to have a fair deal, Don Blenkarn (PC—Peel South) said Friday.

Some rural members, many with parliamentary seniority, "are saying representation by population doesn't matter" because they "are worried about their seats," he told the Commons.

Blenkarn, a 43-year-old lawyer, said he has been asked by members of his own party, and by government members, not to speak against the bill. He represents the fast-growing town of Mississauga—population 156,000—in southern Ontario.

He noted that government House leader Allan MacEachen, who introduced the bill earlier this week, stands to lose his riding in Cape Breton Island under the redistribution proposals.

The bill would suspend the work of the 10 provincial electoral boundaries commissions, which have drafted new constituency boundaries on the basis of the 1971 census. The new boundaries, in many cases, add Commons seats in urban areas while subtracting from less-densely populated regions.

RCMP Probing Own Involvement

OTTAWA (CP) — RCMP is investigating alleged "minor violations" of the Customs Act by members of the force in Newfoundland, a force spokesman said Friday.

He could not confirm reports that the alleged violations involve smuggling of contraband liquor from the French islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon off Newfoundland's south coast aboard an RCMP patrol boat.

There have been reports that police have searched the homes of some RCMP officers in connection with the investigation.

Ease Drink Laws, Alberta Told

CALGARY (CP) — General relaxation of Alberta liquor laws, permitting establishment of neighborhood pubs and lounges, brewers' retail beer outlets and giving minors the right to drink when accompanied by parents, was recommended Friday by a special provincial government study.

In a report, the contents of which Attorney-General Merv Leitch said will find their way into law next year, a six-man committee appointed by the cabinet warns against continuing stringent laws on alcohol consumption.

"Our present liquor legislation has resulted in the creation of unfortunate drinking habits in the province."

The committee says that it hopes that drinking may eventually become a secondary activity, and that licensed premises will become places for "companionship and enjoyable activities."

The committee, headed by Conservative MLA Ron Ghitter, wants revision of most current Alberta licensing practices for lounges, bars and private parties.

Key recommendations include switching responsibility for administering liquor laws to the minister of consumer affairs.

Ghitter told a news conference at which the report was released that this proposal reflected recognition that the government ought to cater to individual tastes and not to try to suppress them.

Hefty Tax Proposed To Hit Speculators

VANCOUVER (CP) — Speculation in raw land is a major contributor to high housing costs on the Lower Mainland and the Greater Vancouver Regional District plans higher taxes to curb it, according to Vancouver Mayor Art Phillips.

Phillips, chairman of the GVRD planning committee, said this week that various plans were being considered to deal with the problem and action can be expected in the fall.

These included an outright imposition of a higher tax rate on raw land, than on developed land, or a reduction of taxes on improvements and an increase in all land taxes. He said the net effect of this would be to leave the taxes on improved land as they are but would raise it on raw land.

"Our objective is to make the carrying of raw land a lot more expensive than it is," said Phillips.

Phillips said the GVRD has about 29,000 acres of undeveloped land that is zoned for urban use.

He predicted that when the full impact of the plans being developed by the GVRD are felt, land values on the Lower Mainland will tumble.

He said detailed proposals are now being worked out by the GVRD planning staff and will be ready for implementation in the fall.

Phillips said there is a great deal of unwise land buying going on, mostly by what he called amateur speculators.

He said that among other steps being urged by the GVRD is the imposition of higher taxes than Canadians pay on land owned by foreigners.

Such a move would require provincial legislation.

Phillips made the statements during a news conference in which he outlined discussions of a closed door session on housing Wednesday at the University of B.C.

The conference was attended by Lorne Nicholson, minister without portfolio responsible for housing and federal officials, as well as representatives and developers.

Phillips said the meeting agreed that the shortage of serviced land was the real problem in the housing shortage.

Saving the Seas' Resources

NEXT YEAR, IN SANTIAGO, CHILE — domestic politics permitting — some 126 nations will send their representatives to the Law of the Sea Conference in the hope of establishing a set of rules for the preservation of the resources of that environment.

Among questions inevitably to be raised will be that of jurisdiction over vast off-shore areas. Chile, Peru and Mexico, for example, are claiming rights up to 200 miles from tidewater. Canada has tentatively put forward a proposition for control of the continental shelf which, in places, extends even farther.

Such claims would not mean that a nation would close these waters to foreign fishermen; but rather assume responsibility for the maintenance of fish stocks on a perpetual yield basis.

Such issues are tangled in traditional fishing rights, right of passage by super-tankers and other details which make them very difficult of solution. An example is the dispute between Iceland and the British and West Germans. The island's fisheries resources are being rapidly and dangerously depleted, and in an effort to preserve them Iceland is trying to enforce a 50-mile territorial limit, so far without success.

While insisting on the basis of tradition going back more than three centuries that her trawlermen have the right to fish to the recognized 12-mile limit, Britain is willing to reduce her catch in the interest of conservation. This sort of compromise arrangement, it must be admitted, presents one way out of a dilemma. But it pre-supposes goodwill.

Unilateral takeover of coastal waters, such as contemplated by Canada, may not provide the kind of universal ocean management the world requires. But it will serve in the short term for the preservation of diminishing resources.

Until June 28 the Canadian position was obscured by indecision in Mitchell Sharp's office. But he has finally been persuaded, if reluctantly, to speak.

It was John Lundrigan, a Newfoundland Conservative, who asked in the Commons if the minister was prepared "to state categorically that he does support the position that the marine resources over the continental shelf and slope are owned by Canada?"

Mr. Sharp promised a statement "later in the year." But that did not satisfy the Conservatives. He was pressed to answer whether Canada would seek to extend its jurisdiction seawards at the Law of the Sea Conference. And when the minister continued to be evasive, James McGrath, another Newfoundland Tory, intervened to say that Mr. Sharp had apparently "misunderstood or deliberately misconstrued" the question.

To make it perfectly clear, Mr. McGrath asked "whether Canada will now take as its official position that it has jurisdiction over its continental shelf and slope for purposes of management and conservation . . .?"

"I fully expect," said Mr. Sharp, "that in the objectives or the general position that Canada will take in preparation for the Law of the Sea Conference some such objective will be stated."

So it seems likely that Canada will join Mexico, Chile and Argentina in seeking to extend its ocean jurisdiction unilaterally until such time as a universal policy can be formulated. Unless, of course, it is possible for some other interpretation to be given Mr. Sharp's words or the minister changes his mind.

It's the Berries

ROADSIDE STAND TOURING is in full swing with Saanich Peninsula strawberries in full production. A happier way of spending an hour or two is difficult to contemplate, with the joy peaking at eating time. The taste of home-grown produce can't be beaten, and while some of the pleasure in strawberry touring is the drive, it is sad that attempts to establish a farm-fresh central market place here in recent years have not been successful.

Part of the reason for the failure can be laid to the offering of imported fruit and vegetables at some of the stands. While they may not have been purported to be locally grown and newly picked, it was implied by what was not said. And it turned the shopper off.

This doesn't happen at the roadside stands in strawberry time and their popularity flourishes. It doesn't happen here, that is.

There's larceny in roadside selling of strawberries in England this year, and the National Farmers' Union is incensed. Reports reaching here tell of strawberry pirates rushing crates of imported berries to rural regions and advertising them as locally grown. They are bought wholesale before the main English crop is ready and sold at high prices when their "farm fresh" signs tempt motorists to stop.

"It's getting to be a racket," the farmers' union says, and, "Anyone who can get hold of strawberries wholesale can make a bomb out of it."

It couldn't go over with a bang here. It would be a one-shot sale with no customer returning in an area where the word would spread like wildfire. The weather may suggest imported strawberries, even frozen ones, but the taste tells.

Shabby State of Canada House

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

William O'D. Costello of Ottawa, who recently complained in letters to the editors of The Ottawa Journal and the Toronto Globe and Mail about what he described as "the appalling state" of Canada House in London, has written another letter.

This second missive, dated June 18, was addressed to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

In it, Mr. Costello, himself a former federal public servant familiar with Canada's overseas establishments, and now an executive of the Canadian mining industry, has made Mr. Sharp an offer.

Apparently it is one that the external affairs minister can refuse, for Mr. Sharp hasn't even bothered so far to acknowledge Mr. Costello's letter.

* * *

His proposition:

"Possibly the Canadian High Commissioner in London (Jake Warren, former deputy minister of industry trade and commerce) has asked for funds for renovation (of Canada House).

"If it has not been possible for him to have the request approved, or if you have pursued the matter with your colleagues on the Treasury Board, but to no avail, I should be glad if you would advise me.

"I am confident that given 90 days, I can raise the required money through public subscription from Canadians who like myself still have sufficient pride in our country to do whatever is necessary to have it represented from more becoming quarters.

"I look forward to your reply. Yours truly, (signed) William O'D. Costello."

* * *

It could be that Mr. Sharp's non-response is due to irritation with Mr. Costello's first blast in The Ottawa Journal and The Globe and Mail which subsequently received far wider publicity.

It was just last May that Mr. Costello complained on a score of editorial pages across the land that:

"During a recent visit to London, I was appalled by the shabby state of Canada House on Trafalgar Square.

"Its grimy exterior contrasts embarrassingly with those of other high commissions and embassies and projects us as rather a dreary country which has become indifferent to its relationship with the United Kingdom.

"The need for external cleaning is so apparent that I cannot but wonder whether its neglect is not part of a systematic and deliberate policy of the Canadian government to downplay our traditional ties with Britain."

* * *

In a closing paragraph at that time he publicly urged Mr. Sharp to take "immediate measures to see that Canada House is brought up to standard which will allow Canadians to take pride in at least the visual aspect of their representation in the U.K."

Canada House is not only grimy on the outside but grubby inside, where reception and only the minimum of services for Canadians is grudging in its chilly impersonal indifference.

Since his letter of early May, Mr. Costello has found some reason to suspect that perhaps High Commissioner Warren has asked for funds to restore Canada House to some semblance of acceptability.

And since either the requisition appears to have been refused, ignored, or at best "filed" for further action, Mr. Costello now has addressed himself directly to Mr. Sharp.

* * *

In it he covers some of the points previously raised in his earlier letter-to-the-editors.

But he does touch a new point that just might give Mr. Sharp a twinge.

"The citation," writes Mr. Costello, "in the most recent report of the auditor general regarding the wastage of money in the abortive attempt to refurbish the office of the Canadian consul general in New York has done nothing to diminish my conviction that Canada House must be brought up to a decent standard in which Canadians may take some pride."

The now-retired Auditor General Maxwell Henderson had reported that External Affairs planned renovation of its New York offices, paid $3,000 in architects' fees and then cancelled out.

The project was "reactivated," related the AG, but again, after this time spending $25,000 in architectural fees, External Affairs changed its mind.

But by then furniture costing $67,000 had been purchased, which had been stored first in Toronto at a cost of $6,000, and later in New York for $5,000.

The AG called it "non-productive" spending.

Mr. Costello suggests in his letter now to Mr. Sharp that if the department can afford to fritter away that kind of money in New York with nothing to show for it, External could surely find a few thousand dollars to clean up Canada House.

* * *

And if, out of the $688,918,000 External lists as its spending money in the current estimates, it can't spare enough to clean and lift its face in London, then Mr. Costello will pass the public hat.

So much money wasted, for nothing in New York, so much to put on a big, flashy, nothing-but-the-best show in Paris, and so little for London!

It makes Mr. Costello, as he will tell you, "slightly nauseated."

Public Interest

In considering the controversy which has developed regarding the government legislation to renegotiate the PNE contracts I think we have lost sight of a very important point which is the public interest. Senator Lawson condemns the action of the government and suggests that, if such a course is established, he would press for the renegotiation of labor contracts during their agreed terms, and also that the mortgage companies could also decide to renegotiate mortgages. In my view this argument cannot stand as the renegotiation of labor contracts and mortgages would involve extra monies and profits for a very small section of our society whereas the renegotiation of the PNE contracts is in the public interest and not in the selfish interest of the few.

When one speaks of the sanctity of contracts one could even object to land expropriation by the government, but as this is for the public good such action has been accepted by all levels of government. Surely the public interest should take preference over all other selfish interests of the few.

SPCA Open House

Saturday, June 23, was our annual open house and for the first time in many years it rained.

In spite of the rain our decision to carry on was justified. There was wonderful support from our members and the public. Many people came saying they knew we needed them; we do. Goodwill was expressed by everyone.

The steady, light rain added a flair to the gallant efforts of the Greater Victoria Dog Obedience Club's demonstration of obedience training, an even better display than usual.

The feeling at the end of the day was, "How wonderful everyone is." We felt we just had to say "thank you" to those who helped to make our open house so successful.

A Real Bargain

I disagree with columnists and cartoonists who criticize the premier's $52,000 a year salary. It behooves us all to consider in general western systems of values and rewards which all too frequently are immensely inadequate proportionately to the energies expended. An American infantryman in southeast Asia is paid about $35 per day. What could be a more dangerous, dissatisfying and unrewarding job? Yet Frank Sinatra can command $300,000 per week for a Las Vegas appearance. Bobby Hull and Gordie Howe have signed million dollar deals for playing games which are even seasonal in nature. When one considers the responsibility involved and the amount of time expended by the premier we should be extremely grateful he is not charging us overtime. We are truly getting a real bargain.

Too Much

The Asssociation for Children with Learning Disabilities has recommended that all teachers should be trained in the diagnosis of and remedies for learning-disabled children.

Certainly there is a need to provide treatment for these children, but we should be very careful not to oversimplify the problem. The behavioral symptoms commonly identified as specific learning disabilities may result from such causes as neurological damage, inherited genetic patterns, environmental or emotional defects, or developmental lag. Only those individuals who have a comprehensive understanding of the educational, medical, emotional and social factors involved can successfully diagnose and treat children who are suffering from specific disorders.

Initially we expected teachers to provide academic training, social counselling, guidance in emotional development and sex education. Now we are expecting them to provide psycho-medical diagnosis. Perhaps it is time we stopped expecting teachers to solve all our problems.

The suggestions made by the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities about providing flexibility in the schools with respect to modified courses, oral exams, audio-visual aids, etc., are excellent, and should be followed through for all children. However, any attempt to provide wholesale diagnosis of learning disabilities could result in undue emphasis on slight learning deficiencies. Far better to train teachers to recognize the optimum learning strategies of individual children, and to recognize also those children who should be referred to thoroughly trained specialists.

Schooling Demands

We hear so much about discrimination and peoples' rights these days, that we are overlooking the worst form of discrimination which is right under our noses, and that is educational discrimination.

Quite frequently in your paper and in many others, and in numerous other forms of advertising, we will see jobs listed in all walks of life which demand certain educational qualifications, usually university degrees, yet there are thousands of people around in these same occupations who have no better than a grade 10 education in some cases, and are doing as good or better a job than anyone with a degree can do.

There is an old cliche that experience is the best teacher, and there is a lot of truth in this. It seems to me that in all cases where there is a job vacancy, ability to do the job should be the first requisite, not education. There are thousands of educated bums walking our streets, and on our relief rolls.

It seems to me that this is a field of human rights which the government should take a good hard look at, because even they are guilty of the same breaches of our equality standards in their advertising for employees.

I Beg to Differ

Sneaky Midnight Frolic

By FRANK LOWE

Letters to the editor during the summer months are invariably stuffed with epistles from lawn-and-garden lovers lamenting the damage and mess created by free-roaming dogs.

Even thoough a dog lover, I agree with these protests. No dog owner should allow his pet to use a neighbor's lawn as a canine lavatory, nor permit it to clomp through a garden.

But what about cats? It seems to me, from my vantage point in the sun porch, that cats are by now way ahead of dogs when it comes to vying for the neighborhood nuisance title.

With more and more areas getting tough about dogs on the loose, most of them are now led sedately on leashes. Naturally, there are still uncaring owners who casually turn their backs while their dogs answer nature's call on a convenient lawn.

But the same control is not legislated for cats. Cat owners are a somewhat sneaky lot. Wheareas dog owners, because they have to appear with the dog on his nightly outing, generally perform this chore between 8 and 11 p.m., when a misbehaving dog may reap a well-earned rebuke from a still wide-awake neighbor, cat owners operate differently.

* * *

Cats do not have to be on leashes. Therefore cat owners can let their pets out for that final fling any time.

Usually it is around midnight. Most of the neighbors, presumably, will either be in bed or safely inside their homes.

They will not be there to see what the cats are doing. But as I am something of a night owl, and on warm nights love to sit in the cool of my porch in the dark, I see them.

On some nights I have counted as many as a dozen cats in my small area. They pad up the walk and head straight for those few feeble plants I have tucked into the borders around the house.

* * *

Cats, on warm nights, love to roll in the cool earth. The fact that they are also rolling on plants which have taken you at least 12 hours to plant, on your hands and knees yet, does not disturb their little feline consciences.

Another trick is for one cat to chase another. The lead cat will speed across my lawn and whip through the rose garden.

A thorn or two will catch in the cat's fur. This adds to his panic and momentum so he tries harder — and one more rose bush branch is ripped off.

As I watch this nightly witching hour frolic, I wonder if the owners of these free-running cats really believe their pets have merely gone for a sedate walk around the block?

Are they really unaware of what their cats are doing?

I am not advocating that cats be banned. Nor that they be locked up 24 hours a day.

What I am advocating is that cats operate under the same rules as dogs. They can go out only when on a leash.

Granted, this will not eliminate the mess. There will be selfish or unthinking cat walkers, just as there are selfish or unthinking dog walkers.

But it will get rid of that sneaky midnight feline frolic when, in the intoxicating light of the moon, a dozen Mehitabels carouse in my garden.

Sir Thomas More, once Henry VIII's chief minister, was executed for treason 438 years ago today — in 1535 — after being convicted of perjured evidence. More's offence was refusing to take the oath of supremacy, accepting the English monarch as the head of the church. Before this crisis, he had an illustrious career as a scholar and administrator. He had considered becoming a monk and dealt mercilessly with heretics. More is a Roman Catholic martyr and was canonized in 1935.

Better Than Assassination–Bourguiba

Let Hussein Give Up Jordan

United Press International

President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia took his personal initiative for a Middle East settlement a step further Friday by suggesting King Hussein of Jordan should be prepared to give up his kingdom to provide a Palestinian state rather than risk assassination.

In Israel, Aharon Yariv, a former adviser on national security affairs for Prime Minister Golda Meir, warned in an interview that the current situation of no war, no peace in the Middle East conflict may go on for generations.

"I am sure that in the long run we will find a solution with the Arabs," he said, "but it will come only as a result of a long process when the Arabs will understand that we are strong and the problem will not be solved by force."

Bourguiba, in an interview published in the Beirut newspaper An Nahar, said:

"With respect to King Hussein, I say that the state east of the Jordan River is an artificial entity. Palestine is its origins and its basis.

"The question of Jordan is a matter which could be settled at an Arab summit conference called to discuss the issue of a Palestinian state.

"Whatever such an Arab conference decided would become effective and King Hussein would have to yield to the decision of the people under a democratic regime which would decide the fate of the country."

Bourguiba said it would be better for Hussein to accept any such decision, rather than await the same fate as his grandfather King Abdullah and cousin King Feisal of Iraq. Abdullah was assassinated June 20, 1951, and Feisal on July 14, 1958.

Political sources said there was no doubt that Hussein would emphatically reject Bourguiba's suggestion.

Widow Pleads Peace

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A gunman firing from a passing car killed one man and wounded a second early today in the Roman Catholic Falls Road area of Belfast, police said.

The shootings came as the British army tightened security in Belfast because of threats of more killings.

The dead man, identified as a 28-year-old Catholic, was the 842nd person killed in four years of violence.

Police said the two victims had just stepped from a pub and were walking on the sidewalk when they were shot.

A grieving mother of five children appealed Friday to Roman Catholics not to seek vengeance for the murder of her husband by Protestant extremists.

Mrs. Kathleen Clarke, 54, whose husband Robert, 56, was shot to death Thursday in an ambush by gunmen of the Ulster Freedom Fighters, a Protestant underground group, told newsmen: "No one must try to seek vengeance. Vengeance would just mean other innocent men dying for no reason and that would not help anyone."

The UFF, which has claimed responsibility for six recent assassinations—including those of two Protestants—said Clarke was killed in retaliation for the UFF being accused of last week's bombing of a Protestant drinking club.

Rhodesians Chase Kidnappers

SALISBURY (UPI) — Rhodesian troops fought a running gun battle Friday with a band of African guerrillas fleeing toward the Mozambique border after kidnapping 292 students and staff members from a remote Catholic mission school, a government spokesman said.

The troops, joined later by trackers and big-game hunters in their search, fought several skirmishes with the 17 guerrillas, killing one of them during the day, but lost contact as the sun set.

The government spokesman said 214 of the African school children and female employees at St. Albert's mission escaped in the confusion of the clashes, but that 46 students and 32 adults were still with the guerrillas.

The captives were kidnapped Thursday night from the school and hospital operated by West German Jesuits in the rugged bush country 120 miles northwest of Salisbury.

Rev. Egon Rojek, head of the mission, said the guerrillas also carried away a West German priest, Rev. Clement Freyer, but he volunteered to accompany the group to insure the children's safety.

Freyer subsequently became separated from the group in one of the skirmishes and was returning to the mission with the others rescued by troops.

Rojek said the remaining hostages included six female teachers, eight female nurses and 18 other female mission employees.

When You're So Little, You Try a Little Harder

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — "When I tell people about it, they don't say anything for about five minutes. They just sit and chuckle."

Mrs. Richard Batchelder said she was shocked herself when she learned that Pat and Liesel were going to become parents.

Liesel is a female St. Bernard, three feet high and 130 pounds. Pat is a dachshund, one foot high and 15 pounds.

The nine little pups were born Thursday.

"We just cackled. It was so hysterically funny we couldn't say anything," said Mrs. Batchelder, a music teacher. Her husband, Richard, a civil service engineer at Eglin Air Force Base, couldn't believe it either at first.

"He was so flabbergasted," she said.

Amazed neighbors visited the house Thursday night to see the pups. "Everybody just kinda chuckles," Mr. Batchelder said.

"The two dogs are inseparable," she said. "It really is funny. They will not go anywhere without one another."

No Payoff, Three Dead

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A 46-year-old ex-convict, Sam Smith, angered over being unable to get a $3,000 workmen's compensation insurance settlement in one lump sum, fatally shot two insurance adjusters and critically wounded a secretary Friday, then killed himself.

Fear of Reprisals Led To Nixon Campaign Gift

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Under pressure from President Nixon's personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach, American Airlines made an illegal $75,000 cash contribution to Nixon's re-election campaign from November, 1971, to March, 1972, the airline acknowledged Friday.

"I was solicited by Mr. Herbert Kalmbach, who said that we were among those from whom $100,000 was expected," George Spater, American's board chairman, said in a joint but separate announcement with special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Spater said he knew Kalmbach at that time not only was Nixon's lawyer but represented United Air Lines, American's major competitor. "I concluded that a substantial response was called for," Spater said.

Calling for stronger campaign financiing laws, he said that under existing law, "a large part of the money raised from the business community for political purposes is given in fear of what would happen if it were not given."

American's contribution was made in five installments that were completed shortly before the new campaign contribution disclosure law went into effect April 7, 1972. It has been reported that Nixon's fund raisers collected $1.7 million before the disclosure deadline.

'We'll Never Sail Again'

SEOUL (UPI) — A British couple who drifted for 117 days on a life raft in the Pacific said Friday from the fishing boat that rescued them they had survived on rain water, turtles, seagulls and sharks.

Michael Bailey, 41, and his 32-year-old wife were picked up by a South Korean boat on June 30 but the story of their ordeal was not disclosed until Thursday when they talked by radio with a Seoul newspaper.

"We are happy now," Bailey said, "but we will not sail a boat again."

The newspaper said it talked for 20 minutes with the Baileys and the captain of the rescue vessel.

Bailey, a printer, and his wife left England a year ago aboard an eight-ton yacht on an around the world voyage by way of New Zealand. Their yacht sank March 4 when it collided with a whale about miles off Mexico's western coast.

Then, they said, they pieced together two life rafts and began drifting.

They drank rain water, the Baileys said, and ate 30 turtles, eight seagulls and six sharks they caught with hooks fashioned from pins.

Seven vessels passed without seeing them, the couple said, before they were spotted from a distance of about three miles and rescued.

Wine Drinkers Whacked Again

If you're a wine lover, it may be time to start crying in your beer.

The Liquor Control Board announced Friday it was boosting imported wine, brandy and liqueur prices again and will probably do the same thing next month.

A total of 22 imported wines were hit with the increase which ranged anywhere from 10 cents to $2.85 a bottle. Brandies jumped from between 15 cents and $2.25 a bottle and liqueurs from between 15 and 45 cents a bottle.

A spokesman for the LCB said that the continuing devalution of the Canadian dollar accounted for much of the mark-up. It is more expensive in terms of dollars to bring in imported products whose prices have not changed substantially in the countries in which they are produced.

The French franc, for instance, is going quite well in relation to the dollar. As a result, it takes more Canadian funds to purchase a vintage Bordeaux than it used to even though the wine sells in France for the same price it did a month ago.

Varities of imported wines affected by the price increases include sherry, port, vermouth, still red, still white, still rose, crackling rose and crackling white.

Apricot, blackberry, cacao dark, caraway, menthe green, orange and other types of liqueurs have gone up as well as popular types of brandy and cognac.

Dyed-in-the-Wool Walker

Summer day in Victoria is not supposed to be bleak and rainy, as it was Friday, but dyed-in-the-wool park walkers don't need bright sunshine to enjoy nature's blessings in lovely Beacon Hill Park. In keeping with weather, lone stroller carries umbrella and dons coat to plod through park on daily constitutional.

Private Hospital Abuse 'Rubbish,' Says Operator

One private hospital owner says charges by some employees of Victoria's unionized private hospitals of poor patient care, are untrue — at least as far as his hospital is concerned.

In a brief that has been sent to the provincial government, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 1311 say patients should have fresh fruit and vegetables, implying that they do not.

"This is really rubbish," said Neil de Macedo, owner of the Aberdeen private hospital, 1450 Hillside, Thursday.

His patients get such fresh food as watermelons, grapefruit, Japanese oranges and spinach, he said.

The Aberdeen is not unionized, he added.

Regarding charges that over-active patients are kept sedated or restrained, de Macedo said, "We can't do anything without a doctor's order."

The union has said that hospitals are warned before the visit of an inspector.

"I've never had a phone call from an inspector," said de Macedo. They come at any time of the day or evening and "they're tough," he said.

He said his female aides are paid above union scale at $2.80 an hour. Union spokesman Jean Slater said union rate for an aide with two years experience is $2.20 an hour.

"REAL ESTATE HAS A PRICE INTEGRITY IS PRICELESS"

Profit Motive Mere 'Fallacy'

VANCOUVER (CP) — There exists a widespread fallacy that the objective of business is to obtain the highest possible profit, the president of the Employer's Council of British Columbia said Thursday.

William Hamilton told the annual national conference of the Society of Industrial Accountants that "maximization of profit is a robber baron concept which implies selfish disregard for every other interest except the narrow self-interest of the corporation."

He said corporations today can't continue as viable entities unless they reconcile within their profit plans a variety of interests.

"Primarily, these are the interest of the consumer of a company's products or services, the interests of the shareholder, the interests of the employees and the interests of the community."

Hamilton said when these have been properly reconciled, a corporation produces its "optimal profit, which is quite a different thing from its maximum profit."

He said he hoped it was clear to governments that no responsible businessmen or industries today are attempting to maximize their profits at the expense of other sectors of the community.

"But, equally, . . . unless a reasonable profit level is maintained, there can be no expectation that the necessary financial resources will continue to be available for government objectives."

MacEachen Elaborates on Election Funds

ITT Turned Down Grits, Tories

OTTAWA (CP) — International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT) rejected both Liberal and Conservative requests for election campaign funds last April, Government House leader Allan MacEachen said Friday.

The company had received government grants and contracts, but it did not feel obligated to contribute and this should be viewed as "a healthy sign," MacEachen told the Commons.

He was responding for the second consecutive day to a series of questions from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield on Liberal campaign financing practices.

Stanfield said no political party can take a holier-than-thou approach on the broad subject of corporate donations to finance activities.

But he was concerned at reports that some companies, particularly ITT, were harassed by the Liberals to contribute last fall.

MacEachen said the suggestion of harassment was "rather ludicrous" since only "a couple of phone calls . . . alleged phone calls" were involved.

Anyone construing this as harassment, particularly against a company the size of ITT, would be taking a tender view of corporate sensitivity, he said.

The subject arose Thursday after a newspaper report said two high-level Liberals, one a senator and the other, now a ministerial aide, solicited funds from United States corporations with subsidiaries in Canada.

The report identified the individuals as Senator Harry Hays (L—Alberta) and Mel McInnis, now executive assistant to Stanley Haidasz, minister of state for multiculturalism. Before last fall's election, McInnis was a Liberal organizer in Ontario.

Outside the Commons, MacEachen turned aside the suggestion for an independent investigation.

The matter has been "exaggerated out of all proportion," he said.

"The allegation that seeking campaign funds is a matter of national concern is beyond me."

An investigation would be launched only if there had been some illegality or impropriety involved, MacEachen said, and this did not seem to be the case.

It was not improper for corporations with Canadian subsidiaries to be approached for their help in campaign financing in the same manner as Canadian corporations are, he said.

The government's elections expenses bill, would "answer many of the questions raised;; by the newspaper story. He said the bill will clear the House by the end of the session, unless the Commons committee decides "to launch lengthy examination of campaign funding."

Meanwhile, Mr. McInnis denied he has resigned as Haidasz' executive assistant.

There have been rumors that he has resigned over another matter—a memo leaked last month from Haidasz' office. Haidasz has admitted confronting McInnis about the leaked memo which dealt with a multiculturalism advertising contract.

Asked in the Commons Friday whether McInnis is still a member of his staff, Haidasz said he is.

U.S. Cost Hike 22-Year High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices in the United States shot up at the highest rate in more than a generation last month before President Nixon froze prices for 60 days, the government reported Friday.

The wholesale price index, led by a record one-month increase in the cost of farm products, advanced in June by 2.4 per cent unadjusted and 2.3 per cent seasonally adjusted, both the highest rates since January 1951.

The news was certain to reduce confidence in the dollar overseas, where it has already plunged to record lows on money markets from Paris to Tokyo.

One encouraging note in the economic picture was the labor department's record that the U.S. unemployment rate dropped in June to 4.8 per cent of the work force—the first time since June 1970 it has been below five per cent.

Last month's price report, also from the labor department, showed the inflationary surge continuing at the highest peacetime level since the Second World War.

Wholesale prices increased at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 24.4 per cent during January to June, the five months of President Nixon's Phase 3 anti-inflation program that compares with an annual rate of 6.9 per cent during the 14 months of the Phase 2 program, which had stricter controls.

Gold Index Soars

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market's gold index set an all-time high Friday, but industrials were lower for the sixth straight session. Trading was moderate.

The gold index rose 20.6 to 327.00, surpassing its previous record close of 310.11 on May 14, in response to sharply higher bullion prices. The rise was the sharpest since May 30 when the index climbed 24 points.

Among the larger gains in golds were Dome Mines 5⅛ to $102½, Campbell Red Lake 4 to $67, Sigma 3½ to $22½ and Camflo 95 cents to $10¼.

Some copper producers were stronger, reflecting the sharply higher price for copper on metals markets. Bethlehem rose ⅛ to $14, Branda five cents to $5.65, Campbell Chibougamau 25 cents to $6.45, Mattagami ⅜ to $37⅛ and Placer ¼ to $28.

The Royal Bank has followed the Toronto Dominion Bank in raising its mortgage interest rates to 9¾ per cent from 9½ per cent, effective Monday. Royal Bank was off ⅜ to $32½ while Toronto Dominion was up ⅛ to $30¾.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Although Friday's economic news was generally bleak, stock market prices were only slightly lower in sluggish volume, causing some analysts to view the market situation with guarded optimism.

The dollar closed at record lows in some foreign markets, ending a day of wild trading amid rumors of an impending monetary realignment involving another dollar devaluation. Gold prices soared.

"The market continues to show studied indifference in a round of adverse news," said Larry Wachtel of Bache and Co.

"Six months ago the market plummeted in high volume with this kind of news. Today, nothing."

The NYSE's broad-based index of 1,500 common shares was down 0.23 at 53.36.

Among Canadian issues on the New York exchange, Dome Mines rose five to $102, McIntyre 2¼ to $49¾ and Canadian Pacific ¼ to $16⅞.

Alcan was unchanged at $29¼ and Hudson Bay at $28¾ while Massey-Ferguson dropped ⅛ to $18⅝.

AN OUTSTANDING OPPORTUNITY FOR A BONA-FIDE MARINE STORES OR BOATING ADDICT

Our company currently markets a range of over 200 amateur and professional boat designs of all shapes and sizes in Canada and U.S.A. by direct sale from the U.K. We are now looking for distributors to market these for us in order to increase sales and profits and reduce our overhead. Both these highly lucrative markets produce sales in excess of $100,000 per annum giving a minimum net profit of $30,000. We would expect these figures to double in the next two years.

All goods are offered on a sale or return basis. Minimum stock expenditure is required with generous financial assistance to suitable applicants ● Large scale advertisement backing ● Excellent after sales service arrangement with free advisory service to customers.
Interested persons should immediately contact the Marketing Director

Empty Seats Spell Problems

'No-Shows' Give Airlines Headache

No-shows, passengers who simply fail to turn up for flights they've booked, have long been a major headache for airlines.

Despite all their marketing wizards and financial planners, the big carriers have never been able to agree on a joint solution to the problem.

In the U.S. last year, Pan American World Airways had over a million no-shows, costing the company upwards of $17.8 million, more than half the $28.9 million it lost last year.

Trans World Airlines reported that one out of every four customers who reserve seats fail to show up. They cost the firms about $3-4 million a year.

The story is pretty much the same with United Airlines, the largest U.S. carrier. The firm says that fully booked flights still go out with an average of between 10 and 13 per cent empty seats.

They also provide difficulties in Canada. Stan Mooney, district manager for Air Canada, said in Victoria that there is a no-show problem but, "it's livable."

"It varies season by season," said Mooney, "but generally we run about 70 per cent full on our flights.

"You can't operate at 100 per cent anyway. Airlines feel if they're running about 60 per cent, they're doing okay."

Robert Noon, manager of reservations and ticket offices for Pacific Western Airlines, called no-shows "one of our biggest problems."

PWA flys at about 60-70 per cent capacity and the feeling is that this is about the optimum figure.

"60 to 70 per cent is about right for an airline like PWA," said Noon, "If you go higher you're not providing enough service to a city and if it slips much below 60 per cent, you may be providing too much."

PWA recently instituted a computer booking system called ALFIE, or airline flight information electronics. It's part of Air Canada's Reserve II system and cost PWA about $4.6 million to set up.

The system works on a planned oversell basis. A flight is booked to about 125 per cent capacity 90 days before flight time and then, as flight time approaches, the percentage drops to a theoretical maximum capacity. Twenty-four hours before departure passengers are contacted to confirm their reservations.

The system seems to work fairly well and PWA reports almost no problem with passengers who get bumped from a flight they've reserved.

"It doesn't happen that often," said Noon, "The passenger is automatically booked on the next available flight and he's wined and dined and even booked into a hotel if necessary."

He added: "The only true way to beat the no-show problem is to educate the public to think of their fellow man."

Alaska Route Faults Underlined by Ottawa

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada would not look favorably on a U.S .application to build an oil pipeline through Canada if the U.S. first goes ahead with the Alaska pipeline route, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Friday.

Conservative John Fraser asked "if this government would look favorably on an oil pipeline through Canada which does not replace the Alaskan pipeline and tanker route but which would be in addition to the Alaska pipeline and tanker route?"

The Minster's reply was a brief but emphatic, "No, Sir."

The Canadian government has consistently opposed a U.S. proposal which would involve heavy tankers carrying oil from Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, to refineries in Cherry Point, Wash.

Canadian authorities cite the possibility of oil spills, especially off the coast of B.C., when they explain their opposition to the tanker route. The tankers must pass through the narrow Juan de Fuca Strait before arriving at Cherry Point.

So far court injunctions sought by environmentalists have held up the start of the Alaska part of the pipeline. But the U.S. Senate is expected to examine a bill on the tanker route and take a vote early next week.

Macdonald also said U.S. state department representatives had submitted a series of questions to the government as to the Canadian position on certain aspects of the pipelines.

"The government replied in detail," Macdonald said. "I hope the answers get to the senators and congressmen before any decision is made," he said.

The questions mainly dealt with matters which have already been made public by the Canadian government such as the current status of environmental studies and native claims with respect to the Mackenzie Valley route.

But in the last section under "other observations deemed relevant" the department of energy, mines and resources amplified what Macdonald said in the Commons Friday.

"If Alyeska is built, Canada would find little attraction in having a second oil pipeline built through Canada to serve U.S. Midwest markets unless (underlined) and until (underlined) sizable commercial Canadian oil discoveries have been made in the north.

"Moreover, Canada is aware that the economic attraction of looping an existing trans-Alaska pipeline would undoubtedly militate against construction of a line through Canada.

"Admittedly, other circumstances such as markets and security of supply might made it attractive to build such a second line through Canada. However, such circumstances are undoubtedly present even in respect of the first oil pipeline," the department answers said.

Service For United

Installation of Lawrence Moon as Christian education director and assistant to Rev. Hugh Hunter will take place at the 7:30 p.m. Sunday service in First United Church.

He and his wife Evelyn and family will be active in many areas of church work.

Moon has been chairman of the council of Cadboro Bay United Church and, for a while, was partner in a gift shop in downtown Victoria.

Before coming here two years ago he spent 12 years as Christian education director in two Calgary churches — Rosedale (North Hill) United and Riverview United. He had previous experience as a YMCA executive as director of community organization and also as director of the YMCA group and family education centre.

His wife is a former YWCA worker and she has been involved in various church groups.

Daughter Pierann, a third-year music student at the University of Victoria, has been active in CGIT, Teen Bible Class, Hi-C and choirwork. Greg, a high school student, takes part in school and Y programs, Scouting and Hi-C.

Christine, who is in Grade 5, sings in the school choir and belongs to the Y. She has been in youth choirs and is a Messenger and an Explorer.

Clifford Horwood, representing the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church, will take part in Sunday's installation. A reception will be held in the Fellowship Hall after the service.

St. Anne's Church at French Creek provides attractive rustic sight

St. Anne's Built in 1894

Church Linked with History

QUALICUM BEACH — St. Anne's is one of the oldest log churches in the province. It is located at French Creek near Parksville and was built in 1894.

In 1893 services were held in the Little Red School House known as Englishman River schoolhouse. Rev. Charles Edward Cooper, an Englishman recently arrived from the old country was appointed missionary in charge of Nanoose District and was responsible for the areas of Englishman River, French Creek, Errington, Little Qualicum and Nanoose Bay. He used to travel on horseback.

The need for a church became evident and at a parochial meeting held in the school house on May 1, 1894, it was decided to build a church.

Cooper purchased 3½ acres of land at French Creek because it was centrally located and he deeded this land to the Anglican church. On June 24, the walls of St. Anne's were raised by parishioners who had previously made a clearing on the land.

On July 26, 1894, the church and church yard were consecrated by Rt. Rev. W. W. Perrin. Clergy from neighbouring parishes and the choir of St. Mathews in Wellington were present.

It appears that nobody knows why Cooper chose to name the church St. Anne's. St. Anne was the grandmother of Jesus and the dedication of the church took place on St. Anne's day.

The logs for the church were taken from the nearby woods, hand hewn and pulled to the site by oxen borrowed from local farmers. Lumber was brought up the coast on rafts from a mill in Nanaimo.

The work of the parish expanded and in 1897 it was decided to start a church home Sunday school in Nanoose, Errington, Englishman River and Little Qualicum. In the following year, Cooper's curate, Rev. Asquith, was appointed incumbent at Alberni and Rev. David Dunlop took his place at St. Anne's.

A financial report for 1898 showed 11 families with 48 individuals on the parish role. The church was valued at $1,680 and a stipend of $36 was paid.

By 1913 there were six stations in the charge of Rev. Hugh Wilson. They included Qualicum Beach, Hilliers Crossing, Coombs and Nanoose Bay.

The church's silver anniversary was celebrated in 1919. The bishop and many old friends attended the service at which a brass lecturn was dedicated in memory of the late Rev. Cooper. In 1921 Mrs. Cooper gave a stone font in memory of her husband. In the same year it was necessary to build an addition to the church.

The population of the area kept increasing so a parish hall was built at Parksville in 1925 and the bishop consecrated the tiny church of St. Mary's in Errington on March 25 of that year. The following year, St. Mark's church in Qualicum Beach was dedicated on June 11.

By 1934 major repairs had to be carried out on St. Anne's church. The logs on which it had been built had rotted and needed to be replaced. The men of the parish gathered together in October and raised the building on jacks. They dug a trench around the outside walls, and replaced the old logs with 36 new cedar blocks. The chimney had to be rebuilt and new eavestroughs installed. Total cost of the repairs amounted to $58.81.

St. Anne's church has just one stained glass window which is located above the altar. It was presented to the church in memory of Dorothy May who had been a staunch supporter of the parish.

The bishop presided at the 50th anniversary service on April 29 - St. Anne's Day in 1944. An addition to the vestry was consecrated on this occasion. Canon H. V. Hitchcox and Rev. G. Arthur Bagshaw assisted in the ceremony. Bagshaw had resigned as incumbent of St. Anne's in February after serving in the parish for 12 years. The Rev. Huwell J. Jones was appointed in his place.

In 1952 George Roscoe's house was purchased in Parksville and this became the new vicarage. The house by the Island Highway at the west end of the village was sold last year and the parish purchased a new house for Rev. James C. Davenport. He is rector of St. Edmunds and also has in his charge St. Anne's and St. Mary's church in Errington. He makes occasional trips to the little church on Lasquetti Island 11 miles out from French Creek boat basin.

St. Anne's has requred major repairs and maintenance. In the spring of 1953 the church was given a new roof of cedar shakes. Two years later the outer porch doors were added and an oil heater installed.

In spite of the new heating arrangements the church was still very cold in winter so the roof was insulated. The problem was not fully resolved until 1971 when a new furnace and duct work were installed. Prior to this some services were cancelled because of the cold.

Drop In and Smile

The Breda family from Edmonton and folk singer Bob Marlowe of Los Angeles are being featured in a drop-in program for young people at Emmanuel Baptist Church, 2121 Cedar Hill Crossroad.

Operating under the name Smile Centre, the program goes on from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. Monday to Friday.

The Bredas will give a concert for all the family at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the church. Marlow is singing and giving leadership at the centre and will appear at the open-air gospel meeting in Beacon Hill Park when Emmanuel Baptist is in charge of the service at 7 p.m. July 15.

The Bredas express their lives, their thoughts and their faith in Jesus Christ through the medium of music. Parents Dan and Faye, the children, Danny, 14; Alice, 13; Steve, 12 and Bridget, 10, all sing and play instruments.

Although they play 25 different instruments, they limit them to guitars, bass drum and rhythm instruments while on tour.

The parents, professional musicians and music teachers in Edmonton, are taking a tour with their family through B.C., the Yukon, Northwest Territories, Alaska, Washington, Oregon and California during July and August.

Marlowe is well known through his work with Young Life and has come to Victoria from the organization's camp at Malibu on the Mainland.

Combined Park Services

Victoria's Free Methodist Church and the Evangelical Free Church will combine to conduct the open-air gospel service at the Cameron Bandshell in Beacon Hill park at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Pastor Carl Klassen of the Evangelical Free Church will preach the sermon and Pastor Philip Calkins of the Free Methodists will be master of ceremonies.

The joint choirs of the two churches will sing and there will be several vocal solos, duets and instrumental numbers.

In addition, three persons will testify from their own experience to the saving grace of Jesus Christ.

The services, now in their 31st year, are sponsored by Park Services Interdenominational.

Seventh Day Adventists Will Meet in Hope

Seventh-day Adventists from Vancouver Island will go to Hope from Friday to July 21 for their annual assembly.

About 2,000 persons from B.C. and neighboring American States are expected to attend the 10-day, oldtime camp meeting, Mrs. Kathleen Piper of Victoria, public relations officer for Vancouver Island, said this week.

Right now, she said, it's a busy time in the homes of Adventists who are planning to attend the camp.

"Mothers are preparing clothes for the family and food that will store and keep so that no unnecessary work time will be spent in household chores that could keep anybody from attending the meetings which will be held from 6:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. daily, except Friday afternoon when the whole camp will be busy with preparation for the Sabbath, Saturday," she said.

The days will be taken up with meditation, weight control, Bible study, talks on health, family recreation periods and discussions on the crises of life. Children will take instruction in arts and crafts and will be entertained with films, songs and stories. For the young people a special program of challenge, learning and doing has been arranged.

On the first weekend The Heritage Family, a Canadian singing group, will perform. Special guests will be members of the Adventists' radio broadcast team The Voice of Prophecy which originates in Los Angeles.

Attending camp will be H. M. S. Richards, director and speaker on the broadcast; Brad and Olive Braley, organ-piano team and Del Delker, contralto soloist. The Voice of Prophecy offers free Bible correspondence courses in 72 languages plus Braille in English and Japanese. It broadcasts in 31 languages.

Catholic Groups Battling Slurs

NEW YORK (AP) — On both sides of the fence, among church defenders and reformers, groups of Roman Catholics have organized recently to do battle against what they see as sham, slights and slurs regarding their religion.

In the case of a newly-formed women's group, it also aims to fight asserted ecclesiastical insults to their sex.

It will "receive and publicize reports of specific cases of discrimination and degradation suffered by Catholic women within the church," says Frances McGillicuddy, president of St. Joan's Alliance.

On a wider front, another unofficial Catholic group recently was set up to combat misinformation about the church and what it considers signs of rekindled anti-Catholicism in the country.

But groups took their cue from the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, a long-time organization set up to expose prejudice, misrepresentation and slander against Jews.

Borrowing the name itself, the women's group was designated the "Anti-Defamation Committee" of St. Joan's Alliance, a group favoring equal status for women in the church, including the priesthood.

Christian principles demand "equality of the sexes," the group said. "We are feminists because we are Catholic."

The other group, called the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights, said it was modelled both on the Jewish Anti-Defamation group and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Buteyn

Seminar Opens Friday

A seminar on The Art of Visitation will be conducted by Rev. Donald Buteyn, executive pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Hollywood, Calif., next Friday and Saturday in Centennial United Church, Gorge Road at David.

Registration will begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday followed by two lectures by Buteyn — Why Christians Visit and Visiting the Adherent.

The Saturday session begins at 10 a.m. and ends with a reception and refreshments at 9 p.m. Cost of the seminar is $5 including refreshments and smorgasbord lunch on Saturday.

Saturday's topics are "visiting the lapsed or apathetic member"; "visiting fellow churchmen"; "visiting the shut-ins and involving them in the church"; "visiting the non-churched person" and "visiting the sick in body and mind."

Buteyn co-ordinates a team of 10 ministers at his church.

Baroque Recital To Open Series

Music in the Cathedral, a series of eight weekly recitals, begins at 4 p.m. today in Christ Church Cathedral.

Today's performers are James Kennedy on recorders, baroque flute and krummhorn and Peter Bishop on organ and harpsichord.

The program will feature Bach's Trio Sonata No. 1 in E-flat major for organ and works by Francesco Barsanti and Andrew Parcham.

Kennedy, a graduate of the University of Victoria, is a faculty member of the Victoria Conservatory of Music and a specialist in the performance of baroque music on original instruments.

For the past five years he has been winner of the open recorder class in the Victoria Music Festival. This year he also won the senior woodwind championship and represented Victoria at the finals of the provincial music festival in Vancouver.

Bishop, a graduate student at UVic, is assistant organist at the cathedral. The series has been arranged by Beal Thomas, director of music.

John Gallienne, organist and choirmaster at St. John's Anglican Church, will be the artist at next Saturday's recital.

Ex-Victorian Will Edit Observer

A former Victoria man has been appointed news editor of the monthly United Church Observer.

He is Lloyd Mackey, 33, of Surrey. Born and educated in Victoria, Mackey began his journalistic career with the Chilliwack Progress, a Fraser Valley weekly. While there he specialized in education, religion and social issue reporting.

Last year he moved to The Columbian, a lower Mainland suburban daily, and also wrote a syndicated provincial affairs column which appeared in 35 B.C. newspapers. During this time he wrote for The Observer, other religious publications and the Star Weekly's Panorama.

Co-Communion Asked

'First' in U.S.

SOUTHBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Officials and parishioners of a Roman Catholic church and an Episcopal Anglican church have asked for permission to share communion.

It is believed to be the first formal request of its kind ever made in the United States.

The petition seeking intercommunion was signed Wednesday night between Notre Dame Roman Catholic Church, whose parishioners number about 5,000, and Holy Trinity Church, with a membership of 500.

Rev. Edward Cobden, rector of Holy Trinity, said the request would be forwarded to Rt. Rev. Alexander Stewart, bishop of the episcopal diocese of western Massachusetts, and Jan Cardinal Willebrands, presiding officer of the Vatican secretariat for promoting Christian unity.

At the 19th

IT'S NEVER happened before, and Al Jones, executive secretary of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association is at a loss trying to figure out why the 1973 women's tournament got more entries than the men's tournament.

It was a close thing, a Friday afternoon recheck showing 159 men down to tee off at Uplands on Monday while 160 distaff golfers are on the starter's sheet at the Victoria Golf Club. But it's an amazing development in that the male division almost always reaches its maximum of 192 golfers while failure to come close to the previous maximum of 176 made the PNGA decide to lower the women's maximum to 144 this year. The change wasn't made on the entry form, and the result was a record entry which probably could have reached the 176 if it hadn't been decided that 160 would be the 1973 maximum.

Running behind from the start, the men's tournament couldn't quite match that although the entry deadline was extended by a week and the handicap limit increased from 12 to 15. Some extra entries did result, but they included only one golfer with a handicap of more than 12.

"I really can't understand it," said Jones. "It's a surprising thing that we should have so much trouble getting entries for a tournament here."

Noting that only two Spokane golfers were entered, Jones wondered if too many tournaments wasn't the biggest single reason. It was a valid thought as the Inland Empire has two tournaments which conflict with the PNGA.

Another reason could be the gasoline shortage which has made motorists in some areas of the U.S. northwest reluctant to stray too far from home. In any event, a check of the entries shows only one golfer from California, only 10 golfers from Oregon, none from Idaho, and almost all of the more than 100 Washingtonians from the western part of the state. Another contributing factor was the little interest shown in the tournament by Vancouver-area golfers. Only nine from the Lower Mainland are entered, and the best of them on the basis of handicap are Lee Swope of Port Coquitlam, who plays to a four, and Ian Monteith and Gordon Murray of Vancouver, who play to a five.

However, while male Mainlanders are scarce, the female of the species was not nearly as reluctant to come to Victoria for the PNGA show. There are 35 of them, including one from Nelson, due to tee it up Monday morning.

* * *

ONLY TWO former champions could be discovered among the entrants — George Holland of Seattle, who scored victories, in Tacoma each time, in 1965 and 1958, and Judy Hoetmer of Seattle, who must be looking forward to next week's action with considerable anticipation. Miss Hoetmer was the winner in the last two tournaments held in Victoria — 1966 and 1960.

Both will have plenty of competition. While there may have been deeper PNGA fields, PNGA victory never comes easily.

Mary Dudke, the U.S. champion from Dayton, Ore., has to rate as the golfer most likely to succeed. But there are a good number of others who rate, including Marilyn Palmer of Vancouver and Victoria's Dale Shaw, who reached the 1971 final.

Even without the Mainland's low handicappers, the men's field has 23 golfers with handicaps of less than three. Duke DeBernardi of Roseburg, Ore.; John Hegland of Lake Oswego, Ore.; Mike Stohl of Portland and Bob Zimmerman of Marysville, Wash., are scratch golfers. There are five with handicaps of one, 14 two-handicappers and 38 others below six.

Dave Mick of Gorge Vale, Bob Hunt of Uplands and Bob Beauchemin of Gorge Vale are among the one-handicappers. And with Mike Pyke of Glen Meadows, Ken Floyd of Royal Colwood and Mike Gray of Uplands among those playing to a two, there is at least a reasonable chance that a long PNGA drought could end.

Victoria golfers did extrememly well in the early days of this tournament, which started in 1899, but not since Bob Fleming did it in 1954 has a Victoria golfer won a PNGA title. Fleming was the fifth Victorian to score in the men's tournament, preceded by A. V. Macan (1913), R. N. Hincks (1912), C. K. Magill (1906) and A. H. Goldfinch (1901). Goldfinch (1899), W. E. Oliver (1901), D. Gillespie (1908), J. F. Arbuckel (1912), E. J. Barker (1913) and Alan Taylor (1933) are the Victorians who lost in the men's finals.

Victoria women have won nine PNGA titles, and five of them came in a row. A Miss Drake was the first, winning in 1901. Mrs. Burton scored in 1904, Miss V. Pooley in 1905, 1909 and 1914. Mrs. Walter Langley in 1908, Miss N. Combe in 1910 and 1911 and Mrs. W. H. Ricardo in 1912. And while there hasn't been a Canadian winner since 1933, Mrs. V. N. Hutchings, of Winnipeg and Vancouver, holds the record with six championdnships — 1922-25-29-30-32-33. Edean Anderson Ihlandfeldt of Seattle, who last won in 1964, is a five-time champion.

SPECTATOR fare will be excellent next week, but what the PNGA hasn't got can be seen today and tomorrow in the BCGA Invitational tournament, a 36-hole affair which will decide the makeup of the provincial men's and junior men's teams.

It has Doug Roxburgh, and this young man, who holds the Canadian title and has just retained provincial honors, could become the best golfer this, or any other province, has produced. Amazingly straight, particularly with his long irons, he is a treat to watch. He tees off at 12:49 this afternoon at Gorge Vale, and can be seen again tomorrow morning (time not available last night) at Royal Colwood.

World-Class Athletes Here For Two-Day Track Meet

All the athletes are here.

The organizational problems have apparently been solved.

And the weather forecast is favorable.

So it's full speed ahead for the Pacific International Games, the most prestigious track and field meet held here in many years.

The two-day games get underway this afternoon with a full program at Centennial Stadium.

Athletes from five nations and a large number of guest entries will compete in a full slate of events that should produce several national and perhaps even international records.

Teams from Australia, New Zealand, Japan, the United States and Canada that participated in the Pacific Conference Games last month in Toronto are basically intact for this meet, which starts at 1:15 p.m. both days.

Finals are split evenly between today and Sunday and, as an added attraction for opening-day fans, there will be an exhibition of sky diving at 2:45 p.m.

But the real attraction has to be the bevy of world-class athletes.

Marilyn Neufville of Jamaica, the world record holder over 400 metres (51.0 seconds) was at the stadium Friday night and said she was ready.

"The track's a bit hard but it should be very fast tomorrow," she said, "so I'll take a good warmup and be ready for the 400 metres."

Her main competition should come from Australia's Charlene Rendina, an Olympic finalist and Victorians Bev Cox and Cheryl Blevins, both members of the B.C. team for the Canada Summer Games.

Miss Rendina will also be entered in the 800 metres against Canada's Glenda Reiser, an Olympic finalist in Munich.

Miss Blevins will also run in the 100 and 200-metre sprints along with Canadian-champion Joyce Sadowick of Burnaby, Patti Loverock of Vancouver and Gail Turney of Duncan.

Attention will also focus on the high jump, where Canadians Debbie Van Kiekebelt and Louise Hanna will probably get stiff competition from Brenda Staffanson of Nanaimo.

The male high jumpers should be chasing John Hawkins of Courtenay, a gold medal winner at Toronto and one of seven entries who has consistently cleared seven feet.

Murray Keating of Victoria should also do well in the final field event on the program, the hammer throw. Keating's best toss is 209 feet.

The mile race will include nine runners who have broken the four-minute mark including Ken Elmer of Vancouver who accomplished the feat last month.

Over the longer distances, Japanese champion Ichio Sato will be the favorite although he should be challenged by Dick Quax and Richard Taylor of New Zealand, Jon Anderson of the U.S. and Victoria-hopefuls Richard Kirkham, Dave Weicker and John Wheeler.

In the women's 100-metre hurdles, Jill Pelland and former-Victorian Penny May will be pitted against former world record-holder Mamie Rollins of the U.S.

Miss May will also compete in the star-studded long jump against Olympic finalist Hiroko Yamashita of Japan. Lynette Tillet of Australia and Commonwealth Games champion Brenda Eisler of Vancouver.

Today's action winds up at about 5:30 with the 4x100 relays for both men and women and the always-interesting 3000-metre steeplechase.

Expos Run Rampant At Astros' Expense

Montreal Expos scored 26 runs Friday to sweep a doubleheader from Houston Astros in one of their most productive days since joining the National League in 1969.

John Boccabella belted two home runs in the sixth inning to spark the Expos to an eight-run rally and a 12-8 triumph in the first game.

Boccabella became the 18th player in major-league history to hit two home runs in the same inning when he led off the sixth with a homer and added a grand-slam when he got a second at bat.

Ron Fairly blasted two home runs, his first since June 5, and Bob Bailey batted in three runs with a pair of singles as the Expos dropped the Astros, 14-6, in the second game.

Despite the pair of wins the Expos picked up only one-half game on the first-place Chicago Cubs and the second-place St. Louis Cardinals in the East Division race.

Ferguson Jenkins picked up his ninth win as the Cubs beat San Diego Padres, 8-5, and Bob Gibson won his 233rd career game as the Cardinals beat San Francisco Giants, 3-2.

The win ties Gibson with the Giants' Juan Marichal as the major-league's winningest active pitcher.

In the West Division, San Francisco dropped to four and one half games behind Los Angeles Dodgers, who snapped a six-game losing streak by edging Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-2.

In the American League, New York Yankees snapped a three-game losing streak with a 5-2 victory over Minnesota Twins.

The Yankees picked up one-half game on Baltimore Orioles who split a doubleheader with the west-division leaders, Oakland Athletics, losing the first game, 5-7, and winning the second, 5-3.

Wilbur Wood took his 12th game in 27 decisions as Chicago White Sox lost, 4-2, to Boston Red Sox.

Reggie Smith hit three singles, including the 1000th hit of his career, to lead the Red Sox.

Keith Aldridge's single Friday night ruined Bill Polz' no-hitter at Central Park.

Aldridge's leadoff single in the fifth inning was the only hit off Polz, who struck out 11 batters in Century Inn's 4-0 triumph over Labatts in a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League game.

Polz, who struck out eight in the first three innings, allowed three bases on balls and received errorless support from his teammates.

Bob Custance sparked the Century offence with three singles, scoring two runs.

Wimbledon Final Delayed by Rain

LONDON (Reuter) — Thunderstorms washed out Friday's all-American women's singles final at the Wimbledon tennis championship, and for one of the finalists, Billie Jean King, the rain meant an ominous 10th anniversary.

Exactly 10 years ago, Mrs. King reached the women's final here for the first time and when the big day arrived, down came the rain. The match was postponed until the following Monday and Mrs. King was soundly beaten, 6-3, 6-4, by Australia's Margaret Court.

The final between Mrs. King and 19-year-old Chris Evert will be played today followed by the men's final between Czechoslovakia's Jan Kodes and Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union.

Ridley Sets Henley Record

HENLEY-ON-THAMES (CP) — Ridley College of St. Catharines won its second elimination race for the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup Friday and set a record time for the event at Royal Henley regatta.

The schoolboy eight finished the 2150-yard course in 6:38 minutes, leaving behind King's School of Chester, England.

Ridley advances to the semi-final today and if successful in that race will row in the final later in the day.

Stockton Storms Into Lead

MILWAUKEE — Dave Stockton fired the best round of his pro career Friday to take the lead in the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

The 32-year old former National PGA champion carded a nine-under-par 63 for a total of 132 for two trips over the 7010-yard Tuck-away Country Club course.

Larry Ziegler ran off a late string of three birdies for a 69 and was in second place at 135.

Veteran Bob Goalby, the first-round leader, carded six birdies but could do no better than a 71 in the gusty winds and slipped back to a 136.

Mike Morley followed with a 71 and 137 while Hubert Green and Homero Blancas were tied at 138.

Stockton, who has earned five titles in his nine years on the pro tour, played the back nine in six-under-par 30 and needed only 27 putts for his 63.

It's been bettered on the pro tour only once this season. J. C. Snead shot a 62 at Phoenix.

Long noted as one of the game's best scramblers, Stockton didn't have to resort to his specialty. He didn't miss a green and didn't make a bogey.

It was in sharp contrast to his play in Thursday's opening round when he made four bogeys en route to a 69 and hit only five of 14 fairways.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg dropped nine strokes behind Stockton by shooting a 73 for a 141 total.

George Knudson and Ben Kern, both of Toronto and the only other Canadians in the tournament, both qualified for the final 36 holes. Knudson had a 71 for a 142 total and Kern a 70 for a 143 total.

Head of B.C. Team Confident As Games' Lineups Shape Up

By STAN COOPER
Colonist Staff Writer

Last of a Series

BURNABY — Competing before a hometown crowd is condisered to be an asset in any sports event and the Canada Summer Games shouldn't be any exception.

That's the opinion of Victoria's Jim Panton, the quietly-confident chef de mission of the B.C. team for the Aug. 3-12 meet in Burnaby and New Westminster.

Panton, director of the Community Recreation department of the provincial government, has headed the B.C. teams in the three previous Canada Games — the Winter Games in Quebec City (1967) and Saskatoon (1971) and the Summer Games in Halifax-Dartmouth (1969).

"Although the team isn't final yet," Panton said this week, "I believe it's the strongest we've had in Canada Games competition."

There are still several of the 16 sports organizations to submit final lineups but the majority of names are in.

And from the rosters, B.C. looks capable of giving Ontario and Quebec a strong battle for points and medal honors.

B.C. finished second to Ontario by 11 points and 15 gold medals in the 1969 Games and this year, with most of the fans from the home province, the tables could easily be turned.

"As the Games concept is to give each of the provinces a chance at getting new facilities, B.C. won't have another chance for nearly 20 years," Panton added. "This is our big chance to win."

The B.C. track and field team should be on a par with Ontario and the swimmers and divers should also be in the running for medals.

The baseball and softball (Victoria Vicettes) teams are considered to be top-class as are the tennis and water-skiing squads.

The track team, under the direction of provincial coach Art Hutton, includes several athletes with a good chance of representing Canada in the upcoming Commonwealth and Olympic Games.

Restricted to athletes 18 and under, the track team is drawn from the very best high-school squads.

Jean Sparling of West Vancouver and Harry (Comet) Haley of Trail are perhaps the best-known performers of the team but the 12-member Vancouver Island contingent should do well.

Javelin-thrower Phil Olsen of Nanaimo is breaking records every time out and the 16-year-old is closing in on the B.C. junior men's mark.

Clubmates Joanne Calverley (shot put and discus) and Laurie Budd (long and high jumps) and assistant coach Glen Di Georgio complete the Hub City entry.

The Victoria group includes sprinters Cheryl Blevins, Bruce Vye and Vince Sequiera; middle-distance threats Bev Cox, Richard Kirkham, John Gage, Tom Griffin and Tom Michell and hurdler Tim Page.

Two other Victorians, Gail Gummer and Ian Campbell will be competing in the pentathalon and decathalon trials later this month which will fill the 45-member track team.

The Vicettes, coached and managed by Wally Yeamans, will be adding two players from Vancouver Legion for the Games. The Victoria girls went unbeaten in the recent trials, winnning four games while allowing only six runs.

The provincial baseball team will lean heavily on the Island for pitchers.

Lindsay Thomson of Nanaimo joins Victorians Mike Finlayson, Rus McKee and Glen Wallis on the mound staff.

The soccer team, which played well in a recent exhibition game against a Brazilian squad, will use six Islanders — Kim Blank and Gordie Manzini of Nanaimo and George Hyne, Doug Marshall, Bob Bolitho and Dan Lomas of Victoria.

Eight Victorians are included on the 15-member field-hockey team and Mrs. Claire Brown of Campbell River is the only Island representative on the shooting squad, managed by Gary Williams of Victoria.

Dewayne Van Euwen of Duncan and Victoria's Joe Morgan join Brentwood College schoolmates John Burns, Jim Hennigar and Bruce McDougall on the coxed fours rowing crew. Brentwood's Tony Carr is the team manager.

Monty Holding of Port Alberni will coach the highly-rated swimming team which includes Margaret Meyers and Sue Clifford of the West Coast city.

The 17-member swim team is headed by Steve Pickell and Debbie Bengston of Vancouver, considered to be two of the finest Olympic prospects in Canada.

The water-skiing squad features Canadian junior champion Greg Athans of Kelowna, whose brother George is the reigning world champ.

Probably the strongest team B.C. will have is the tennis squad, which includes Stephanie Bardsley, Sue Stone, Taffy Savard and Wimbledon-competitor Janice Tindle along with Bob Bardsley, Vic Rollins, Dave Johnson and Cam Dalgleish.

The lawn bowling, canoeing, cycling, lacrosse, water polo and diving teams are all drawn from the Lower Mainland.

The 259-member team will report to New Westminster on Aug. 2 and will participate in the official opening scheduled on the following day at Queen's Park Stadium.

It's expected that close to 3000 athletes from all provinces and the Yukon and Northwest Territories will compete, making the meet the largest of its kind ever held in Canada.

Final B.C. Golf Test Starts Here Today

Fifty-five provincial team aspirants will start teeing off at noon today in the B.C. Golf Association's Invitational tournament.

It's a 36-hole competition with the first round at Gorge Vale and the second round, scheduled for Sunday, at Royal Colwood, and is the final test used for selection of the men's and junior men's teams for inter-provincial play.

Scores in the invitational along with those recorded in the provincial championships, are used as the basis for selection.

Three members of the team which won the Willingdon Cup for B.C. last year—Canadian and provincial champion Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver, Dave Mick of Victoria and Vancouver-veteran Johnny Russell—start the Invitational with a fair edge on the rest of the men's field.

Roxburgh is well ahead with the 285 which won him his third provincial title, Mick is next at 289 and Russell third at 290. After that it's a wide-open scramble with Bob Mitchell of Vancouver at 295, Fred Cotton of Vancouver and Ken Floyd of Victoria at 296, and Bob Watson of Surrey and Doug Stewart of Vancouver at 297.

Jim Nelford, who qualified for the invitational in the men's provincial tournament and then won the junior title this week, appears to be a shoo-in for a junior team berth. He won junior honors with 292, five strokes ahead of Alan Swope of Pitt Meadows. Gordon Harder of Beach Grove and Richard Donaldson of Vancouver are next at 298.

Lee Haskell and Brad MacLeod of Victoria and Sandy Harper of Nanaimo, all at 305, are the Island golfers with the best chance of team selection.

Draw for today's round at Gorge Vale:

12 noon—Cec Ferguson, Glen MacDonald, Greg Bett.
12:07—Lee Haskell, Kelly Murray, Dave Baydala.
12:14—Bob Watson, Harry White, Jack Frank.
12:21—Bill Perhudoff, Ron Bell, Gary Glen.
12:28—Dale MacDonald, Jim Davison, David Bruce.
12:35—John Hardyment, Bob Hunt, Mark Mitchell.
12:42—Brian Debisio, Bill Hobbis, Mel Thompson.
12:49—Doug Roxburgh, Jim Nelford, Dave Barr.
12:56—Allan Swope, Richard Donaldson, Brad MacLeod.
1:03—Neil Crofton, Steve Berry, Dave Donaldson.
1:10—Phil Redford, Lorne Sammartino, Norm Clark.
1:17—Doug Stewart, Bob Mitchell, Ken Floyd.
1:24—Al Robertson, Chad Campbell, Jim Perhudoff.
1:31—Dave Mick, John Russell, Fred Cotton.
1:38—Gordon Harder, Jim Buckley, Russ Jordon.
1:45—Harold Nassey, Craig Bussey, Sandy Harper.
1:52—Craig Carmichel, Grant Oben, Monty McClusky.
1:59—Mike McCormick, Laurie Peet, Steve Chapman.

Highbaugh and Cutler Spark Eskimo Win

EDMONTON (CP) — An electrifying 99-yard interception return by Larry Highbaugh Friday provided the impact and Dave Cutler's talented toe generated the most effect as Edmonton Eskimos stopped Montreal Alouettes, 25-14.

The Canadian Football League exhibition was played before 19,662 fans, the largest ever to watch an exhibition game at Clarke Stadium.

Highbaugh stepped in front of an intended receiver on the 11-yard-line and dashed along the sideline past at least four would-be tacklers to the end zone on the last play of the third quarter.

His burst broke up what had been a kicker's duel between Cutler and Don Sweet of the Alouettes. Cutler wound up with four field goals in six attempts and converted Highbaugh's touchdown.

Sweet connected on both his field goal attempts and converted Montreal's only touchdown, scored by flanker Brian Baima in the final minute of the game on a 37-yard toss from Jimmy Jones.

Sonny Wade, Montreal's other quarterback, lofted a 66-yard single in the fourth quarter for the other Alouette point.

Jones and Edmonton starter Tom Wilkinson were the only quarterbacks to generate touchdowns. Wilkinson's came on a seven-yard toss to rookie Canadian Tom Chown with less than three minutes remaining.

It was Edmonton's first appearance of the season and Montreal's first loss in two starts. The Als defeated Saskatchewan Roughriders, 24-10, Tuesday in their first exhibition start.

Rookie's Lead Cut In Manitoba Open

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gar Hamilton of Toronto had one stroke cut off his lead Friday but still goes into today's final 18 holes of the Manitoba Open Golf championship with a one-shot margin.

The 23-year-old tour rookie shot a par 72 Friday for a 36-hole total of 140, two under par. One stroke back are veteran Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., a three-time winner of the event, and Bill Tape of Kitchener. Norman and Tape both shot a one-under-par 71 on the 6592-yard Niakwa Country Club course.

Hamilton had nines of 37-35, "missing a lot of eight-foot putts" along the way.

Norman went out at 34 to move ahead of Hamilton after 27 holes, but slipped on the back nine, finishing it with a 37. Tape was the leader after 27 holes. He was five under par at that point but slipped to a 38 on the back nine.

National Hockey League star Dale Tallon was alone at 142, with Bob Cox of Richmond, another stroke back at 143. Gary Pitchford of Toronto had the best round of the day, a three-under-par 69 that left him at 145, the same score as Ken Richardson of Claremont, Ont.

One of the pre-tournament favorites, Leo Bradshaw of Willowdale, Ont., blew himself out of contention with a 79. He was at 154.

Bradshaw came up with nine birdies in the final round of the Saskatchewan Open to capture $1,800 top-prize money.

Champions Bunt Way to Victory

Esquimalt-Victoria made good use of the bunt to edge Cosmopolitan, 5-4, in the second game of the Victoria Babe Ruth 14-15 year-olds all-star tournament Friday at Bullen Park.

It was the second victory for the defending champs and in both games they used a bunt to bring in the winning run.

Ron Hope did the job against Cosmopolitans when he bunted in the seventh inning to bring in Ron Arcuri with the winning run.

Larry Wright has bunted in the only run in a 1-0 win Thursday over Saanich Evening Optimists.

The tournament continues today with Saanich Evening Optimists playing Cosmopolitans at 6 p.m. at Bullen Park.

Speedway Program Rained Out

Rain forced postponement of the big Western Grand National super-stock program at Western Speedway on Friday night.

The National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) event was to be the first half of the $20,000 Canadian portion of the series with the final part scheduled Sunday at Westwood on the Mainland.

Officials at Western said the NASCAR event is tentatively rescheduled for some time in September.

Tonight at Western Speedway, midgets from the Washington Racing Association are slated to make their first appearance of the season. Time trials are scheduled for 7:00 with racing at 8 p.m.

Foiled by Second Arrest

Artist Jailed for Drugs

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Lee Hooker, Jr., 21, of Oakland, Calif., was sentenced Friday to 74 days in jail after pleading guilty to charges of impaired driving, possessing narcotics and failing to appear in court.

He was also fined $500.

He was arrested June 21 and charged with driving while impaired by alcohol or a drug and possession of heroin. He was released on $500 bail but failed to appear in court June 22 and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Hooker was picked up again June 23 and charged again with possession of heroin, as well as failure to appear in court.

He was sentenced to 30 days each on the two heroin charges, fined for impaired driving, and had his driver's licence suspended for two years. He was also sentenced to 14 days in jail for failing to appear in court. The sentences will run consecutively.

He was appearing at a Vancouver nightclub with his father, John Lee Hooker.

Prison Pledge

Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer has promised to eventually remove Oakalla prison from Burnaby. Newly-elected Burnaby Mayor Tom Constable has pledged to work for the removal.

'Murky Media Cloud'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor is going to spend her days getting reacquainted with old Hollywood friends, a spokesman said Friday, as both the actress and Peter Lawford scoffed at reports of a romance.

Lawford said he was "enveloped in a murky cloud of media dust" which made him the "villain in the piece" in Miss Taylor's split with Richard Burton and that nothing could be farther from the truth.

Saying she could speak on the subject for Miss Taylor, a spokesman said the rumors were ridiculous. "For pete's sake, they've known one another for years and years and years," she said.

Miss Taylor, who was accompanied here from New York only by her adopted daughter Maria, 11, was staying with a friend in Holmby Hills. She has taken the position there is nothing more to say about her separation from Burton at this time.

Aaron Froesch, Burton's attorney, said in New York there were no plans nor had there been any discussion about termination of the marriage. He said Burton was expected to return to Europe in a week.

BUTCHART GARDENS. Known throughout the world for their incredible beauty. Romantic Night Lighting . . . spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars" . . . Smashing Stage Shows . . . Floral Restaurant . . . Begonia Bower . . . Show Greenhouse . . . Fascinating Seed and Gift Shop. Open every day 9 a.m. to 11 p.m.

BUTCHART GARDENS — EVER CHANGING, ALWAYS LOVELY. Skillful planning, constant replanting, dedicated gardeners pooling their ideas and knowledge, keep them that way week after week, season after season. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written about, talked about, admired gardens. Embracing over 30 acres, actually six gardens in one, fabulous Sunken Garden, Lake Garden, stately Italian, quaint Japanese, the great Stage Show Garden (now in full swing) and the English Rose Garden, especially gorgeous right now!

BUTCHART GARDENS ROMANTIC NIGHT LIGHTING. As darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, lily ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland, softly scented by the flowers — a spectacle so unusual, so grand it's indescribable! Featuring the Sunken Garden and the spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars." This alone is worth coming to see.

BUTCHART GARDENS FLORAL RESTAURANT. Open every day 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., serving delicious lunches, afternoon teas, and delightful buffet suppers in the evening. Continuous Snack and Coffee Bar service.

BUTCHART GARDENS SPARKLING ENTERTAINMENT. Staged in the midst of incredible beauty it's the highlight of Victoria's summer entertainment season.

Pamela Benched By Court Ruling

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Saying he doubts the United States constitution applies to girls wanting to play baseball, Federal Judge Barron P. McCune has upheld the suburban Avonworth Baseball Association's refusal to permit Pamela Magill to play ball with the boys.

"I have serious doubts that the Fifth and 14th amendments apply to situations of this kind," said McCune in his ruling on a suit filed by the 10-year-old girl's parents.

"I doubt if there's any unconstitutional discrimination in this instance or discrimination of any kind, for that matter," the judge said.

McCune said he based his ruling on the fact that baseball is to a large degree a contact sport and that other legal precedents had guaranteed women equal rights only in non-contact sports such as skiing, tennis and golf.

Champs Decided

Chuck Davies and Jessie Kinnaird won Vancouver Island singles titles in lawn bowling recently.

Davies, from Victoria Lawn Bowling Club, downed Stu Morrison of Nanaimo, 21-9, in the final for the Peace Cup. Mrs. Kinnaird of Burnside captured the Wenger Cup with a 21-15 decision over Victoria's Alice McConnell.

In the consolation finals, Jim Ritchie of Victoria and Burnside's Flora Martin were winners. Ritchie took the Archie Findlay Trophy and Mrs. Martin won the Nanaimo Cup.

Argos Cut Thornton

TORONTO (UPI) — Defence halfback Dick Thornton, a 12-year veteran of the Canadian Football League, was dropped Friday by Toronto Argonauts.

Thornton, 33, a graduate of Northwestern University, played six years for Winnipeg Blue Bombers before coming to the Argos in 1966. He played mostly defence half in Winnipeg but did fill in on occasion at quarterback.

Pioneer Pair Glowing On Birthday

A woman who came to Vancouver Island to settle in Chemainus before the turn of the century Friday celebrated her 103rd birthday in remarkably good health.

Mrs. Lucy Gillingham still glances through the Colonist every morning in her room at Glengarry Private Hospital, 1780 Fairfield, and is just "as well as she was last birthday," according to a hospital spokesman.

She celebrated her birthday quietly and enjoyed a visit from her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Douglas Gillingham, 56 Gorge Road East.

Born in England, Mrs. Gillingham Sr. came to Chemainus with her mother who was, in 1897, the first midwife between Duncan and Nanaimo.

A hard worker in her younger days, Mrs. Gillingham did a lot of fine needlework, her family says. She knitted until her mid-90s, but now "keeps up on things" by checking the Colonist.

Another Victorian with a birthday Friday was well-known photographer Harry Knight, 1955 Waterloo, who turned the 100 mark.

Knight operated a photo studio on Fort Street for many years and his outstanding picture collection was acquired by the city of Victoria last year.

The collection contains more than 30,000 photographs and negatives depicting life in Greater Victoria since the turn of the century.

Friday Knight was guest of honor at a tea party and at night was the centre of attention at a special family dinner.

Pacific Trollers Decide Today On Fish Course

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Troll-boat owners will be meeting up and down the Vancouver Island coast today to decide what action they should take in the light of a strike Friday by 7,000 members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union.

The trollers, which have been fishing since the salmon season opened April 15, have been arriving in port this week to unload the most recent catch before the strike closed fishing plants as well as idling net-fishing boats.

It is expected that it will be Monday or Tuesday before any of the trollers put to sea again, although Merv Ellis, manager of the 750-member Pacific Troller Association says that association is in a position to see that fishing continues, if that is what members want.

"We are the largest deep-sea fishing fleet in the world and we are capable of making arrangements for the marketing of our products and obtaining all the supplies necessary to properly conduct our business outside of Canada," said Ellis.

As the noon strike deadline neared and late boats were unloaded, salmon prices went sky high.

Coho salmon, which on Wednesday were bringing 81 cents a pound, was up to $1.10 a pound as buyers scrambled for business and springs were bringing up to $1.75 a pound, according to Ellis.

However, spokesmen for the UFAWU say that the top fish prices are not of prime concern to the 3,500 net fishermen out on strike for better minimum prices.

It is the prices at the bottom of the scale that they are arguing about, more than anything else.

They have been asking for 24 cents a pound this year for pinks and 28½ cents next year, while the Fisheries Association of B.C. has offered 18½ and 19¼ cents a pound.

There is also a disagreement about the price of salmon roe, with the fishermen asking for $1.50 a pound this year and $1.75 a pound next year and pointing to overseas areas where companies are paying $3 a pound for the product. The association does not wish to negotiate a price for roe.

Also involved in the strike are about 500 tendermen — the men who pack the catch from ship to shore — and 3,500 shoreworkers who are asking for higher wages and fringe benefits.

In Victoria between 60 and 70 workers at B.C. Packers plant at Ogden Point are involved, and there are also three small non-union fish plants — Oakland Industries, Dennis Shellfish and Coast Shellfish, but the UFAWU has said it will picket them if the attempt to process fish.

UFAWU president Homer Stevens estimates that it will be about a week before the effects of the strike are noticed in the market place.

He said stores of fresh fish might run out in a few days in some places, but that it will be 10 days to two weeks before the effect of the strike on supplies of frozen or canned fish becomes noticeable.

Stevens said wages are a major issue for shoreworkers, most of whom earn less than $3.50 an hour.

Shoreworkers want increases of 80 cents an hour this year and next, with equal pay for women, and they have been offered 60 cents an hour this year and 50 cents an hour next.

Tendermen earning between $583 and $784 a month under the old contract are asking for a $160 monthly increase this year and $120 next year.

Rayonier Engineer Says Requirements Rough

Pure Effluent Cost: $13,000 a Day

Full treatment of the effluent from its Port Alice pulp mill will cost the Rayonier company at least $13,000 a day, according to information given to a Pollution Control Board hearing Friday.

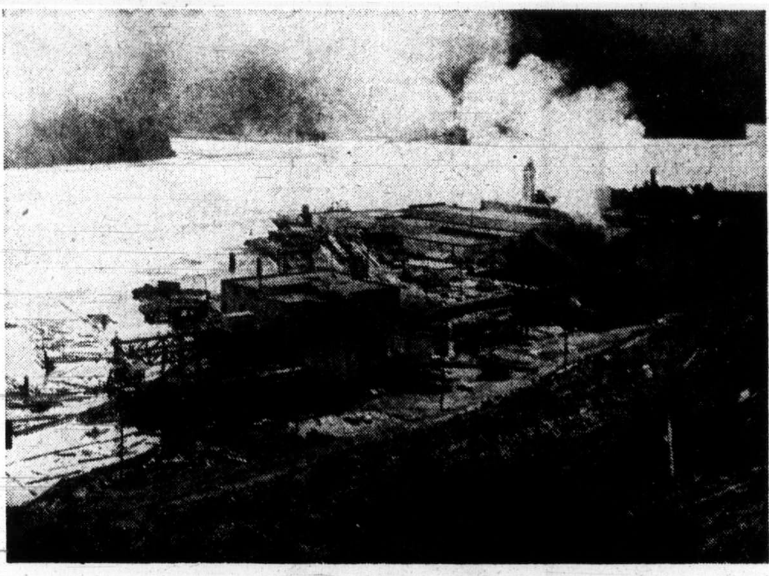
And nothing less than full treatment will meet the water quality standards the Pollution Control Branch has ordered the mill to reach by the end of 1978, said Rayonier's chief environmental engineer Ned Button.

Button estimated that full treatment would cost the company between $28 and $30 for each ton of pulp produced. With an average daily production of about 460 tons, that's between $13,000 and $13,800 a day.

Button was testifying at the sixth day of the hearing at which the company is appealing the water quality standards for 1978. It is also requesting an extension of its deadline to meet the first stage of controls, the construction of a recovery boiler.

The deadline given by the branch is Dec. 31, 1975, and Button said it would be close to impossible to meet that on the basis of technical considerations.

The company is more than willing to install such a boiler but needs a deadline extension of at least five months to complete it, he said.



Rayonier mill on Neroutsis Inlet

Button, managing environmental engineer for the entire Rayonier conglomerate of mills across North America, said he and his staff had prepared four plans for pollution control at the milll.

The first was the recovery boiler which alone would lower the reading on one pollution index from 1,235 to about 280. That figure must be reduced to 60 under present orders by the end of 1978.

Full treatment — by either one of two possible methods — would reduce the figure to 56, he said. The company had hoped a second stage of treatment which involved treating only two main elements of the effluent instead of all of it would have worked, but it reduced the figure only to 100.

Cost of the boiler would be about $30.1 million, he said. It would, however, save the company some money once it was operating because recovered wood fibre and sulphur could be used again, and the heat generated could be used for power.

The savings could be more than $2 million a year, but the operating costs of it would still be about another $2 million a year when interest charges, depreciation, maintenance costs, insurance and taxes were taken into consideration.

Overall, building the boiler would mean an increase in production costs of $11.77 for each ton of pulp produced.

Capital costs for the full treatment of effluent are not so great as that for the boiler, said Button — an extra $12.5 million for one method, $12.6 million for the other.

One method would involve the diking up of a lagoon in part of the inlet behind the mill. This would then work as a settling and aeration pond to treat the effluent.

The second system is called the "activated sludge process" and involves having nutrients act biologically on the effluent. The difficulty with that process, Button said, is disposal of the sludge later.

He hoped the federal government would allow Rayonier to dump it far out to sea; otherwise it would have to be burnt, greatly increasing the costs.

Although the capital costs would not increase dramatically, the operating costs would be considerably higher for full treatment of effluent, said Button.

Either system would require more staff to run it and more maintenance costs, and neither would increase the company's savings.

The yearly operating costs for the lagoon method would be about $4.9 million and for the sludge method about $5.3 million. This would lead to an overall per-ton cost for the lagoon method of $28.17 and for the sludge method of $30.68.

Button said the boiler could not likely be in operation by the given 1975 deadline because it would take 32 months to construct it after final plans were approved. There are now only 30 months before the given date.

For example, it took two years just to get delivery of a necessary turbo-generator.

Button said he felt the 1978 controls were too strict. He disagreed with the branch's policy of not differentiating between dissolving-sulphite mills (like Port Alice), kraft pulp mills, sulphite paper mills, and kraft paper mills in determining water quality standards.

He noted that to meet standards many kraft mills needed to reduce their effluent by only 10 per cent to 30 per cent. Sulphite paper mills had to reduce theirs by only 60 per cent.

But dissolving-sulphite pulp mills had to reduce theirs by at least 80 per cent, and possibly as much as 97 per cent if they didn't have a recovery system.

Earlier in the day, Roger Tollefson, an environmental researcher for Rayonier, concluded his testimony after being on the witness stand for more than six hours.

Tollefson admitted there had been "several" fish kills at the mills this year and over the past few years. He said he believed the cause of the kills was hydrogen sulfide gas which bubbled to the surface of the water when Neroutsos Inlet near the mill was dredged to clear it of sludge.

He said that to keep the dissolved oxygen levels in the water at a proper level the company was having to cut back 30 per cent and more during the summer, but wouldn't have to cut back at all during the winter.

The hearing, before board chairman Valter Raudsepp and two other environmental experts will continue July 16 at the Victoria Law Courts.

Bapco Complex

Project Target '74

Construction of a multi-million-dollar hotel-apartment complex on the Bapco Paint property at Laurel Point could begin early next year if a land-use contract for the development can be arranged with the city early this fall, an official of CIL Properties Ltd. said Friday.

Company vice-president Stanley Kwok said his company would be working closely with a sub-committee of city council following approval last week of criteria for negotiating a contract.

Kwok said waterfront land leased by the developers from the transport ministry is to be transferred to the city because it will be used for a park and an agreement has to be reached on road closures.

The closing of part of Belleville and Montreal to allow the development to be set back from the waterfront has been approved by the city in principle in return for guarantee of public access to the waterfront and paying for a portion of the park by CIL Properties.

Friendship Signed Off

Wine and Friendship proved a costly mixture early Friday. Someone threw a wine bottle at the large plastic sign outside the Friendship Inn, 39 Gorge, and, according to manager Mrs. Rita Wilson, caused an estimated $1,000 damage.

Five Face Two-Count Charges

Drug Stake-Out Described

Two RCMP officers testified in B.C. Supreme Court Friday about how they kept surveillance on some of the five people named in a two-count narcotics charge.

Standing trial before Judge M. L. T. Drake in Victoria on charges of conspiracy to possess, and to traffic in heroin are Daniel Hadden, 57; Michael Kincses, 27, Wendy Darcy, 25; and Robert Langer, 30.

Another person named in the charges, Sharon Yvonne Dannenberg, 29, pleaded guilty midway through the trial to possession of heroin last September and October in Victoria for the purpose of trafficking.

A stay of proceedings was entered on the other count — conspiracy to traffic in heroin — but she remains named in the charge.

Constable Michael Onyschuk told the court that he had taken part in a stake-out in front of a unit at 340 Island Highway on Sept. 13.

He said he saw a woman, Linda Anderson, who he described as a known heroin addict, leave and then re-enter one of the units.

He said he saw Robert Langer visit the same unit.

Onyschuk also testified that he had watched Langley and Sharon Rogers (otherwise known as Ms. Dannenburg) together at various places, and he had also seen Rogers and Kincses together.

RCMP Const. Douglas Payne told the court that he and RCMP Sgt. David Staples had watched Ms. Dannenburg in the cocktail lounge at the Colony Inn on Oct. 7. She had been with Hadden on that occasion, and other people had joined them from time to time. At one time he saw Hadden pass a "sum of folding money" under the table to Ms. Dannenburg.

On Oct. 16 in the King's Hotel he saw Langer with a group of people, and later saw Ms. Dannenburg and Kincses leaving. They went to the Century Inn where they were joined later by Langer.

On Oct. 27 he went to an apartment at 425 Quebec and searched it, using a key given to him by Ms. Dannenburg in order to gain entry. He seized some documents, including a yellow notebook and a cheque stub bearing the name Langer.

He returned to the apartment with Staples and Ms. Dannenburg Nov. 1 and Ms. Dannenburg gave him some documents which had been hidden behind a photograph of her son. She also produced heroin from the butter-keeper in a refrigerator, and a syringe from a drapery seam.

The trial continues at 10 a.m. Monday.

Strawberry Festival Postponed

Saanich annual Strawberry Festival, scheduled for Sunday at Beaver Lake Park, has been postponed until July 15, because of the risk of rain this weekend.

Included in the festival this year will be a special program of music by Victoria Symphony Orchestra and other events in recognition of the 33 years of service given by Ald. Les Passmore to the municipality.

Walk on the Wild Side

Let Stars Be Guide To Home Decorating

By NANCY JOHNSON

Colonist-Copley Service

If redecorating is in the stars for you and you also happen to be an astrology buff, today may be your decorating day and time to put the two together.

An ancient science enjoying a renaissance, astrology is shaping days, predicting daily activities and forecasting the future for horoscope readers of varying ages and status.

Everybody's into it. Career girls and housewives. Milk truck drivers and doctors. Professors and plumbers. Husbands and wives.

They are people who live by the stars and may as well live in them.

Here's a handy guide to help you be a decorating seer.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) — Aries people straightforward and against fads. They are direct and decorate their homes the way they see fit, furnishing according to their own true-blue feelings rather than trends. They are decisive and quick shoppers, buying a bargain only when it's something that will last.

They are among the few with nerve enough to let red, a favorite color, rule the roost.

They are also generous and their homes are houses of hospitality. They are involved in causes and quick to offer their homes for committee meetings and long discussions to promote a political candidate or discuss a fund-raising campaign.

Their homes are those of Leonardo da Vinci, Charlie Chaplin, Charlotte Bronte and Salvador Dali.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — Taureans, who do without frills, furnish for needs now and fashion later. They dislike pretenses and artificial glamor.

They hate being in debt, and they are thrifty. Bargains are their best friends on decorating days.

Taureans will shop endlessly for a particular piece of furniture or a painting until they've found just what they want.

Taurus is the sign of profound study, and lots of artists and writers are born under this sign — Satre, Audrey Hepburn, Sarah Bernhardt and Richard Strauss, for example.

So a music room, a library or a studio will make a Taurean pleased.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) — Geminians love adventure and life of make-believe.

They are pleasure-seekers, and they will spend money lavishly to make themselves happy. They love gaiety and luxury.

A Gemini might do a bedroom wall in a cobra skin wall covering and put an ermine spread on the bed. The bedrooms of royalty, especially Empress Josephine and Henry VIII, were decorated in Gemini taste.

Louis Armstrong was another Gemini.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) — Cancerians are extremely romantic and imaginative. They will decorate beautifully because house and garden are important to them.

They love history and antiques and will choose furnishings that have been traditional favorites. They will choose wall coverings in delicate colors and romantic colors, and they might fill their shelves with collections of porcelain figurines.

Cancerians include Bernard Shaw, Thoreau, Shelley, Degas.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) — Those born under the Leo sign like to live in grand style and are often hopelessly extravagant. They love expensive antiques and might choose silk or richly colored damask for walls and velvet or brocade for furniture and windows.

The Leonian's home might contain a giant china cabinet to hold all the trimmings for an elegant table.

Napoleon, Maurice Chevalier and Oscar Wilde are among famous Leonians.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept 22) — Virgonians are discriminating persons with superb tastes. They tend to keep things on the quiet side and go in for grey and navy blue. Their homes are neat and precise.

Virgonians are thrifty, study values and make excellent buys, so don't be surprised to discover that the beautiful velvet-like wall covering was a do-it-yourself job.

Greta Garbo, Ingrid Bergman, Verdi and Leonard Bernstein are included in a list of famous Virgonians.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Librans have tact and social sense, love peace and are interested in the artistic side of life.

They love to please others, so they are great party-givers. A Libran mother is likely to splurge on her children's rooms, even if it means making the rather shabby sofa last another year. But because she's artistic, she'll find a creative way out — may be re-covering that sofa herself.

Librans, including Grace Kelly and Helen Hayes, are likely to choose peaceful blue and white color combinations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Scorpio natives are observant, and they easily pick out the bargains at auctions. They are energetic and thorough and opt for do-it-yourself jobs.

They love easy care and comfort, so a typical wall covering might be washable and home-made by the woman of the house herself.

Scorpians often opt for eclectic looks and might put a paisley pattern on the walls when the furniture has chrome frames. Sound like something you'd do yourself? You're in the same class as Voltaire, Mark Twain, Maria Callas and Walt Disney.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Sagittarians need rambling, casual homes with plenty of storage space for their sports equipment, travel mementos, books and hobby equipment. They are always on the go and are avid collectors.

They love to surround themselves with people and pets as well.

Neatness is not one of their virtues, so easy-care furnishings are for them.

Sagittarians, too, will mix furniture styles, patterns and colors in liberated fashion, hanging modern art in front of a Victorian fireplace or sticking a bouquet of dried field flowers in a rare Ming vase.

Sagittarians count among their numbers such people as Churchill, Mary Martin and Frank Sinatra.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) — Capricornians are busy, industrious and involved with community affairs. They need family rooms for the Little Theatre group or the church circle. Those rooms are likely to reflect their varied interests, each a combination of family heirlooms, up-to-date stereo equipment and poster-size photos from the last safari. Furniture is sparse, but comfortable.

Noted Capricornians include Joan of Arc and Charles Dickens.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)—Aquarians are popular, but strangely enough they don't need other people very much. They love privacy, profound thought and good books.

They are happiest without close neighbors and living in the woods or by the sea. They are also happy in serene settings with pale blue colors and clean-lined furnishings.

An Aquarian should have a room of his own, complete with a peaceful Oriental mural on the wall and plenty of bookshelves.

Darwin and John Steinbeck were Aquarians.

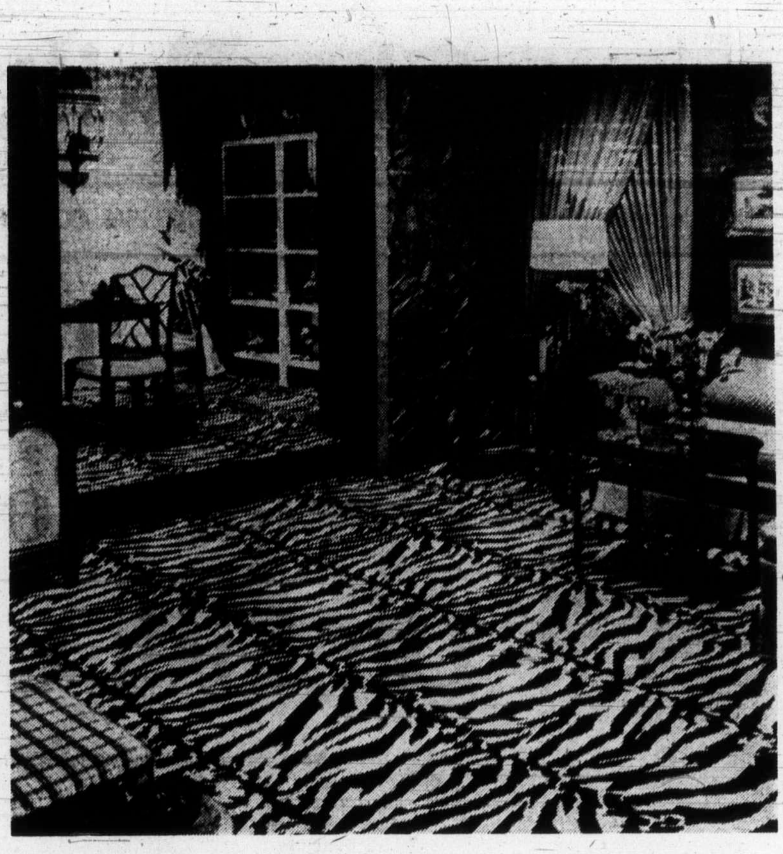
PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20)—The Pisces person is a gentle soul and somewhat of an introvert, but loves anything glamorous, exotic and mysterious. They are happiest in the country or by the shore.

They will decorate their homes in muted, natural colors with woods, linen upholstery, grasscloth or woodsy texture on walls and then throw in a chinchilla pillow.

Pisceans just aren't the type for campy knicknacks or tacky bargain basement finds. Look at their following to understand: Elizabeth Taylor, Haydn, Casanova, Van Gogh and Einstein.

Let the stars be your guide as your chart your own decorating course.

Pick your sign and turn a room into your kind of place. Or pick the best of several signs and make your room— or your house—a living horoscope.



ONLY SOMEONE born under Scorpio would dream of mixing this much pattern in a room. From the zebra-striped carpeting to Grecian drapes, Scorpion's home reflects wide-ranging tastes and fancies.

Editor Turns Feminist In Five Months on Job

Monpetit
... Latin touch

MONTREAL (CP) — Five months as editor of the French version of Chatelaine magazine and "now I have to say I'm a feminist, after 37 years of saying I was not," Francine Monpetit said in an interview.

"My husband totally supported me in my work. I couldn't imagine what it was these women were excited about. Now with this work, I am reading letters from Quebec women about their reality."

Quebec women are not officially feminists and tend to cling to their bias about the kind of marriage and relationships with their children they think they must have, she said.

So French Chatelaine is becoming more feminist.

"We are asking women to look at their lives and see if they could not have something better."

French Chatelaine, which has a readership of 500,000 in the province, is an offspring of English Chatelaine published in Toronto and once a month, Mrs. Monpetit and her colleagues go there for meetings "with the people who have the last word."

"The Chatelaine people have been fantastic. It's an exchange. We are very visual in Quebec. We have things to say about furniture, food, fashion, color."

While French Chatelaine has always taken translated material and much of the art work from the English version for budget reasons, "now English Chatelaine is going to take more from us, not just the specific Quebec products but also more of our approach. The Latin touch really."

Mrs. Monpetit said Quebec women are also concerned about how they look and this makes beauty a big business in the province.

"Much more than just getting their hair done regularly, they exercise, have facials, body massages. They want to know the latest news about makeup colors."

She said she wished she was able to say the same for Quebec men who have "no sense of gallantry."

The Quebec men don't quite know how to react to career women because basically they are afraid, she said. "In France the men are not afraid of any woman — no matter how formidable she is in other respects, she is always a woman."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am 28 years old, not exactly ancient. I write this letter not to criticize but to ask a question. It's about some teenagers I know. Are they different from my teens? The way these kids talk to their relatives ruined my vacation.

My 15-year-old cousin tells her mother to shut up. Her brother, who is 14, says to his father, "You have rocks in your head." He then says to his grandfather, "And you are nuts, too."

When the mother asks these children to do something, they just sit. Tonight she asked the boy to bring the card table in from the storage room. He said, "Can't you see I'm busy watching my favorite TV show?" She said, "Oh, I'm sorry, dear," and got the card table herself. I sat there dumbfounded.

I have heard the same smart-mouth talk from their friends. When I was brought up, such a thing was unheard of. Please comment.—Wally.

Dear Wally: Time has nothing to do with it. Show me a smart-mouth kid and I'll show you a home where the parents have abdicated their responsibility. This happens in any era.

Unfortunately, the kids pay the price for permissive upbringing. Nobody likes obnoxious, disrespectful behavior. These children take their smart-mouth, disrespectful attitude to school and have trouble with teachers. When they get out into the real world the results are sometimes disastrous.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband had an affair with my best friend two years ago. It was a cynical, cold business which left me shattered. It was very hard for me to forgive and forget. First, because there was no evidence he was sorry. Second, the woman and her husband belong to our social circle and we saw them often. (Divorce was out of the question. We have several children who need their father.)

Fortunately for me, my husband was transferred out of town a year ago. My joy was short-lived, however, because I learned last week that we are moving back. I have made it clear that when we return I do not want to re-establish the friendship. He agreed.

Last night he started to push for "togetherness" again and I am beside myself. He tells me he has been asking the woman's husband for favors and professional advice and it isn't possible to ignore him socially. He wants me to agree to have them to dinner and to accept their invitations like "old times." How can I get out of it?—The Other Woman's Friend

Dear F.: Your husband could repay his obligations by taking the other fellow to lunch, but this isn't what he's after. I have a feeling you're going to lose the battle in the long run. So face up to it. You'll need an escape valve for your anger. Get some counselling and learn how to live with that which cannot be changed.

ELECTRONICALLY controlled visual-memory test of moving patterns was brainchild of Dr. Bill Gaddes, left, founder of neuropsychology program at University of Victoria. Marjory Halliwell administers tests on the machine, which was built in the psychology shop by E. F. Johnston.

SERIES OF TESTS given by Marjory Halliwell, like one on Hallstead category, can determine brain dysfunctions for patients with head injuries.

Introduction Follows Foster Homes Appeal

Foster homes are urgently needed in Greater Victoria for family groups of two or more children, toddlers, and children with special needs.

Adults willing to help meet this need will be given an introduction to fostering at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the lounge at the Junction Centre Building, 1627 Fort. The evening is being sponsored by the department of human resources, Capital Region.

More information may be obtained by phoning Bernice Packford at 382-0780 or 382-5121, or Faith Magwood at 477-1186 or 382-5121.

Linking Brain With Behavior Patterns

Simple Tests, Complex Problems

By SHARON CURRIE
Colonist Reporter

When patients walk into the neuropsychology laboratory at University of Victoria they've taken what's called the first and most necessary step to discover the reasons for their basic human behavior.

The psychology department's research lab is designed to link up a patient's brain with his behavior patterns through a series of simple tests.

And that's where Marjory Halliwell the university's chief psychometrician enters the picture.

Mrs. Halliwell, a psychology graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, has administered the tests in the most interesting and varied way possible for nine years.

"It is not always easy because by the time they reach our lab the patients are fed up with tests and for valid results they must give their best."

Patients come from all walks of life. Many have high intelligent quotients. They range in age from six to 65 years.

Some of the most interesting cases have been university students who were involved in car or industrial accidents mid-way through their academic careers.

"These people are extremely anxious about any brain damage but usually they recuperate," said Mrs. Halliwell, a former social worker.

When patients complete the clinical program the tests can show almost exactly which part of the brain is not functioning normally.

This was evidenced in the case of an 18-year-old girl who had planned to take nurses' training in a British Columbia hospital.

But she was dealt a cruel blow—she was a passenger in a car accident in which the driver was killed.

She was put into a government rehabilitative centre and two years later went to the lab for tests.

At that point she was unable to concentrate and had dismissed the idea of becoming a registered nurse. Instead she wanted to take practical nurses' training.

Following a battery of tests, it was discovered the girl suffered from aphasia—language impairments resulting from brain damage.

"The girl's brain was unreceptive to words. She could only find visual clues through lip reading. She couldn't function in any hospital setting where verbal communication is imperative," Mrs. Halliwell said.

Children or adults can be referred for testing after being screened by a neurologist.

Mrs. Halliwell tests the patients of neuropsychologists Dr. Bill Gaddes, who specializes in children's learning disabilities and rehabilitation of patients; Dr. Otfried Spreen whose interest is in aphasia, and Dr. Frank Spellacy who researches auditory perception and anti-social behavior.

Test procedures take about three hours for each patient and are done on tape recorders and mechanical devices to test audio, visual, memory and other brain functions and dysfunctions.

She also teaches new psychometricians, makes all appointments, and instructs students in test administration.

The tests are also accurate in determining the intelligence quotient of a child.

The neuropsychology program, which was started in 1960 as a one-man operation on Saturdays by Gaddes, opened on a daily basis in 1964 with the aid of a national health grant.

At that time test equipment was purchased, designed, built and set up in a large room of the old Normal School.

The following year referral demands from neurologists were so heavy that a second lab was opened in Royal Jubilee Hospital to test pre- and post-operative cases of brain surgery.

Mrs. Barbara Fields, a registered nurse and former public health nurse, was appointed psychometrician to run the lab.

☐

"The difference between the hospital lab and the university lab is that our tests are geared to physically and emotionally distressed people who are also hospital patients," said Mrs. Fields.

Although the hospital lab is geared primarily toward research it has become more service-oriented as considerable patient information is returned to the doctors involved in a written psychologist's report.

"While the lab is basically a gathering and storing centre of standardized information it is the first step — and the most necessary one — toward the total idea of what can be done with this person who has these particular disabilities.

"When one is aware of these finer aspects there is then a starting point from which to work," explained Mrs. Fields.

Patients are referred by neurologists Drs. Robert Peet, Charles Simpson and Frank Kemble who work with neurosurgeons Drs. A. H. Ibrahim and Lewis Harris.

This team looks at possible neurological conditions behind resulting brain damage from trauma caused by accidents, degenerative disorders and tumors.

Weekly clinics are also held at the hospital for medical and nursing staff as well as university students.

The methods of treating brain damage are many and varied, said Gaddes, and the proper method can only be decided after a patient has been thoroughly examined.

There are various theories among medical men on the best method of treating brain damage. The general method that has been most successful involves training dormant parts of the brain to take over the work of the damaged part.

Gaddes believes there is no one method of treatment that is the answer to all brain damage, but that the method of treatment depends upon the type of damage.

Similar testing services are available at the Victoria Mental Health Centre.

Status Group

Munro Tackled On Appointees

A plea for "positive, inteligent" action to implement recommendations of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women has been made to federal labor minister John Munro by Victoria Status of Women Group.

In a letter over the signature of Dianne Grimmer, president, the group this week strongly criticizes selection of the new advisory council on the status of women, one of the report recommendations.

The group says insufficient information was made available to women's groups before the council was selected, and that some of the appointees have "no apparent interest" in the status of women.

"Is it pure coincidence that the seven women concerned with status of women matters were selected for the shortest terms of service?" the letter asks Munro.

It adds:

"The problems of women — urban, ethnic, cultural, with regard to the labor force, education, family, law, minorities — extend beyond the limits of Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal and require more than token representation."

The Victoria group also criticizes what it describes as a "paltry" budget for the advisory council.

New Dispute Hits Builders

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirty-four specialty workmen — pneumatic control technicians — are involved in a strike and lockout that could have serious repercussions on B.C.'s construction industry.

The strike-lockout is similar to the long elevator installers' strike which saw projects completed but stand idle or partly used because they did not have elevators. (Only two workers are involved in the Victoria area).

In this case buildings could not even be completed without work by the technicians, who are responsible for installing controls for heating and ventilating systems. Their work is normally done as the building goes up.

The men are members of the Plumbers' Union, Local 170, who went on strike at Honeywell Ltd. here June 20 and were locked out five days later by four other firms who are members of a national group called the Pneumatic Control Council.

The other firms are Johnson Controls, Barber-Colman, Power Regulators and Temco Controls.

They were originally involved in national bargaining which broke down. Attempts were then made to settle issues provincially.

The workers, also known as instrument fitters or mechanics, earn $7.27 an hour but, except fo car allowances, the issues are not monetary.

Ray Callard of the plumbers' local said the dispute is basically a protest against a bid by the companies to "import fitters from other provinces. We want to protect B.C. jobs."

Callard said the union is also protesting proposals by the companies to reject workers assigned to jobs through the union's hiring plan, and to put non-union personnel from their own staffs on industrial repair and maintenance work.

He said the B.C. and Yukon Building and Construction Trades Council, representing 60,000 tradesmen of all types, has declared products of the five firms to be "hot."

Several technicians continued working on the Jericho Hill School for the Deaf and Blind here and an addition to the G. F. Strong Rehabilitation Centre without pay as a goodwill gesture. They wore On Strike signs on their hard hats.

Bremer
... 'wider perspective'

Students To 'Tell It Like It Is'

High school students throughout B.C. may soon be studying their school system as part of their regular academic work, perhaps as a portion of the guidance curriculum.

Education commissioner John Bremer announced Friday that students in each high school in B.C. would be invited to form an education study group to help in the work of his commission, studying all aspects of education in the province.

Bremer said the students' study groups would "conduct inquiries into any aspect of the educational process that they might consider to be of concern" and could then submit their recommendations for change and improvement directly to him.

School boards, superintendents and principals will be notified of the program immediately by the education department which will urge all districts to support it.

Bremer said the study groups wouldn't be given any specific terms of reference but would be free to choose their own educational topics for study. They might consider local problems or ones that affected the whole province.

The work would be done as part of students' regular schoolwork and a small amount of extra money may be available for the projects. When presentations are ready for the commission, they may be made in written form, verbally, or photographically.

If the program proves successful, the commission may encourage inter-school programs "so that study groups can see their problems in wider perspective."

Teachers could be available to each study group as resource personnel, he said, but he emphasized the group to reflect student opinion "expressed with honesty and candor and without fear," not teacher opinion.

However, parents of students would be encouraged to work with them in their projects.

Individual school boards will have to apporve the introduction of the study groups into their schools, he said. The program has been approved by the executive of the Principals' and Vice-Principals' Association.

Forest Fires Cool It This Week

Cloudy, cool weather conditions throughout most of B.C. during the past week have kept the number of forest fires in the province down, the weekly B.C. Forest Service fire report stated Friday.

The fire hazard remains low to moderate throughout all the province except for the south-central Interior where it is moderate to high.

A total of 84 new fires broke out last week, bringing to 940 the number of fires so far this year. However, only 56 were still burning on Friday. No major fires were reported on Vancouver Island.

Cost of firefighting so far this year is slightly more than $1 million, compared with $900,000 at the same time last year, but costs are down in all fire districts except Kamloops and Cariboo.

Roadblocks Triggered By Holdup

Saanich police set up roadblocks along the Elk Lake section of Pat Bay Highway Friday night in an attempt to find the getaway car used in a holdup at the Elk Lake Highway Grocery Store, 5450 Pat Bay Highway.

The holdup occurred around 9 p.m. Friday but police issued no details of how much money was taken as detectives continued their investigations early today.

A watch was also kept on cars boarding ferries at Swartz Bay.

Frampton Honored
Lions' Governor

Victoria Ald. Percy Frampton was installed as district governor at the annual convention of the International Association of Lions Clubs in Miami Beach, Fla., recently, by newly-elected international president Tris Coffin of Montreal. As a district governor, Frampton will co-odinate and assist community service projects of 39 Lions clubs in his district.

Circus in Town

There are two added attractions in Victoria today.

The De Wayne Bros. Circus performers will be performing at Beaver Lake Park at 2 and 8 p.m. and providing a free show for the handicapped and retarded at 4:30. They are sponsored by the Kinsmen Clubs of Victoria.

The show includes the Cliftons' trampoline act, Aurturo, a juggler, canine revues, clowns galore, an educated horse, elephants, ponies and various other animals.

A little later on, at the Butchart Gardens, the Young Scandinavian Dancers from Junction City, Ore., will be on stage at 9 p.m.

Convertible Era Closes at Ford

DETROIT (UPI) — The convertible era ended at Ford Motor Co. at 10:40 a.m. Thursday when a 1973 Mercury Cougar with a ragtop rolled off the Dearborn assembly line. Only General Motors will offer the soft-top on 1974 models. Chrysler and American Motors wrote the finale on that chapter of U.S. automotive history a few years ago.

M.V. Chesnut's Garden Notes

I have often wondered why it is that grass, which is often so difficult to get established happily in the lawn where you want it, will spring up with such embarrassing vigor in the gravel driveway where you don't want it. I have been observing this phenomenom for some years now, and I have an idea that this affinity of grass with gravel must be due to the excellent aeration and drainage you get in such a driveway.

I believe we can draw a couple of useful lessons from this. If I ever have occasion to make a new lawn again — which isn't likely at my age — I will most certainly put down a layer of either weathered cinders or very small screened gravel before the topsoil is spread. And if I have any choice in topsoils, I'd pick a rather sandy loam with a lot of small stones, pea size and smaller, mixed in. This gravelly loam would be mixed with very old rotted farmyard manure to make up the top layer of my lawn site.

In our last home, the back lawn — which I inherited from the previous owner — was on heavy soil with quite a high proportion of clay in it, and when our children were young this bit of grass took a terrible beating from children's play and all the other traffic over it.

The surface became compacted and beaten down, impervious to air and water, and the grass would thin out to an alarming extent until I got busy and did something about it.

Aeration is the answer to this problem — punching holes through the sod all over the lawn to allow water and air to percolate through the crusted surface to the roots below. I have a special hollow-tined aerating fork for this job; it cost considerably more than I could afford at that point in time, but it turned out to be one of the best garden investments I ever made.

This little implement punches three neat circular holes in the sod every time you push it down, depositing the cores of soil on the surface where they dry out, crumble and disappear in a few days.

It is a long, strenuous and horribly monotonous job to punch holes every six inches over a whole lawn, but I don't know of any one single operation that will produce such a dramatic improvement. I usually do the job in the spring, as soon as the lawn is dry enough for the fork to bring up clean-cut cores instead of sloppy mud, but the grass responds to so enthusiastically, I can't resist taking another crack at it from time to time through the summer.

What with rain, watering and normal weathering, the holes in the sod silt up too quickly for my liking, and one good way to keep them open for the free passage of air and water is to fill them with coarse sand. There is a grade called brick sand with very coarse grains and a lot of small stones in it, and by dumping piles of it here and there over a freshly aerated lawn and working it into the holes with an old stiff broom, it is possible to bring about a more permanent improvement. The addition of this gravelly sand will induce the grass to grow almost as vigorously as in the gravel driveway!

If you don't have or can't rent or borrow a hollow-tined aerating fork, it is possible to do quite a satisfactory job with just an ordinary flat-tined digging fork. Thrust the tines straight down to a depth of five inches, then wiggle the handle back and forth to enlarge the holes, but without any actual prying up, which would injure the grass roots.

Metaphors and Statistics

Melvin Maddocks

Poets never keep count. In war the enemy descends upon one like a cloud of locusts. In peace one flourishes like the lilies of the field. One's generations multiply like sands on the shore.

Who needs statistics when a good metaphor is around? Big as a whale, quick as a flash. Check your yardsticks and your stopwatches at the door, you literalists.

Statistics are a comparatively recent invention. An English journalist named Harry Hopkins has dated them back to 1791, which, of course, is a statistic in itself.

★ ★ ★

That year, as Hopkins summarizes things in The Numbers Game, a Scot named Sir John Sinclair, apparently under the influence of German scholarship, wrote A Statistical Account of Scotland.

What he was trying to establish — no Scottish jokes, please — was "the quantum of happiness" in those hearts in the Highlands.

From here, as Hopkins sees it in his shrewd and skeptical study, there is a more or less straight line to Dr. George Gallup.

The measuring mania was on. Like those little whole and halved gingerbread-man figures in school textbooks, the human race has been turned into fractions and percentages.

Statistics (accurate to the nearest tenth) in somebody's study of broken marriages or holiday traffic accidents. Numerological disasters weeping only decimal points.

A major industry has kept Gallup's promise of running a "continuous audit" on the public. And this audit threatens to become a substitute for the reality it abstracts.

One not only can't see the forest for the trees, one can't see the trees for the inventories of them: 9.1 per cent Norwegian spruce, and so on.

You pick up your paper. A survey of museums performs a nose count on U.S. and Canadian museums. There are, it seems, 6,657 of them, and it would take a conscientious museum-hopper 18 years to visit them all. So much for the subject of art.

Another page, another set of statistics. Well, sir, 1,439 gas stations are spot checked across the United States and 24 per cent of them are limiting their operating hours. (In case you can't find your slide rule, the figure comes to 345.36 gas stations.) Who needs to know more about the gasoline shortage?

Ubiquitous pollsters tell you how many Americans believe President Nixon knew about Watergate or — if you prefer — how many Harvard men, class of '43, smoke cigarettes (about one in five). The facts that pass as meaningful!

★ ★ ★

A man is judged as a boy by his IQ score; as an adult, by how much money he makes; and when it is time to retire, by his age. At which time the most important thing in his life is supposed to be his social security number.

And as if present statistic weren't enough, there are always future statistics, otherwise known as projections.

Somebody, somewhere will be glad to tell you how many babies will be born in Yugoslavia in 1976, or the number of civilians who will be killed in, say, Los Angeles the first hypothetical day of hypothetical Third World War.

What does it do to people to live in a universe which seems to have charts for walls and graphs on the ceilings?

Is there a distortion of thought in presenting life, from first grade on, in terms of: How many apples does John have left if he sells a third of them to Debbie and one of them rolls under a bicycle (10-speed) and he started with 12?

The safety, the reassurance we feel at the drop of a statistic is eerie. We are being precise, we think — we are being scientific. How we long to make life exact and definable! Yet isn't there a profound inaccuracy to all this accuracy?

The final test may be: If you can feed life into a computer, something essential is missing. A something which has quality as well as quantity — which can taste bitter as almonds or sweet as honey. Well, imagine that. Back to the metaphor.

Sydney Harris

Typical of the scores of letters I have received about my column on abortion is one that begins: "I can hardly believe that a man of your intelligence would be in favor of abirtion."

This is how people over-simplify a complex situation. I am not "in favor" of abortion. I don't think it's a good thing. It may very likely be "immoral," however we define that word. What I am against is making abortion a crime.

Suppose I came out, 40 years ago, against prohibition. People would write in to say that I was "in favor" of liquor. I am not at all in favor of liquor. as far as I'm concerned, all of it could be poured into the Pacific Ocean tomorrow morning, and the world would be a better place for it.

But this doesn't mean I think we should have laws making the drinking of alcoholic beverages a crime. Not everything that may be bad for us, or even immoral, should be made against the law. Especially when the subject is, for all practical purposes, unenforceable.

Abortion is an unhappy solution, but all the alternative solutions are worse, to my mind. Making abortion a crime does not stop it, or even reduce it. All it does is make it expensive, dirty, under-handed, hypocritical, dangerous and class-discriminatory.

Quite apart from the tangled moral aspects of the matter, anti-abortion laws do not deter or restrain, except for the poorest and most ignorant, who are precisely the ones who cannot handle more children.

As to the matter of "life," and whether the foetus is "alive," this is a thorny metaphysical as well as biological question that no one can answer with any assurance.

What strikes me as somewhat incongruous about the "right to live" people is their intense concern with the foetus, coupled with their apparent indifference to life after the womb—with their negligible efforts to reduce poverty at home, starvation abroad, and war throughout the world.

If life itself is as precious as all that, one would expect these people to be in the vanguard of the peace movement, for recurrent wars are certainly the greatest violator of the right to life. Waving a flag and wearing a "Right to Life" button strikes me as a doubtful posture.

Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

There is a good reason why Hong Kong streets are cleaner than at any other time in history. You can now be fined up to $2,000 for littering them.

One problem in reaching world understanding is the multitude of tongues in which the world babbles. According to the National Geographic Society, man now speaks 5,000 languages and dialects, ranging from Abakan to Zyrien.

Up to 800 attempts have been made to create an international language. The best known, Esperanto, developed by Dr. Ludwig L. Zamenhof in 1887, now is spoken by some 100,000 people.

How much of the earth was an ice cube during the Ice Age? The sheets of creeping ice covered about a tenth of the earth's surface, or about 19.6 million square miles. But in a sense the earth is still in an ice age. Ice now covers about six million square miles of land.

Goldfish have been favorite household pets in China for more than 1,000 years.

The ivory in an elephant's tusk weighs from 55 to 100 pounds.

Worth remembering: "Children are a real comfort in your old age — and they make you reach it sooner, too."

Home, Sweet Home: Why do bees rarely get lost? Because the bees remaining in the hive flex their abdomens to release a scent and then fan it out from the hive with their wings. The honey-seeking bees are able to zoom in on the scent and use it as a homing signal.

It was Tacitus who observed, "It is human nature to hate the man whom you have hurt."

James Bacon's Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Barbra Streisland, a superstar, won't take her clothes off in any movie.

"Like information about my love life, my body is not for public display.

"Of course," she adds, "it's a social thing. If society would say to hide your face and show your body, you'd see me hiding my face and showing my body.

"But that's me — one foot in the 19th century and one foot in the 20th."

The death of producer Arthur Jacobs recalls a legendary practical joke played on him by the late actor Jeff Chandler and writer Skippy Shearer.

Jacobs at the time headed his own publicity office and one day he got a call on the phone from two alleged members of a local synagogue.

Speaking in Yiddish accents, the two asked Arthur if he would be interested in publicizing Yom Kippur.

"We feel that the Catholics are getting all the publicity with Good Friday and Easter and the Jews are getting none," said Chandler.

Arthur cupped the phone with his hand and hollered to his secretary: "Call the library and see if they have any books on Yom Kippur."

Then, returning to his callers, Arthur said he was interested and would prepare a presentation.

A meeting was arranged at which the rabbi of the temple would confer in person with Arthur.

Chandler and Shearer got a black friend and dressed him up as a rabbi complete with beard with help of Universal's makeup and wardrobe departments.

Came the meeting and Arthur's first words to the rabbi:

"Are you sure you're Jewish?"

Which immediately brought Skippy and Jeff out laughing their heads off.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Friday's answer — The chap who lived from 1887 to 1951 and wrote Magnificent Obsession, The Robe, The Big Fisherman and all sorts of other novels in that time was Lloyd C. Douglas. One of many authors who become forgotten as years pass.

Today's question — There's something alike about the plots of Fantasia, 100 Men and a Girl, Seventh Veil and Once More with Feeling as well as many other musical films. What is it? And who was the Girl? Answers Tuesday.

Saturday Highlights

C 12:00 noon — Action '73 is contemporary rock with Dick Clark — 4.

C 3:00 p.m. — Return of the World of Man series — 2, 6.

C 4:00 — New time for Roller Derby — 12.

C 7:00 — A second PBS run of the Playhouse New York Biography of George Washington, with Rene Auberjonois — 9.

C 8:00 — The popular English series Main Chance returns — 2, 6.

● C 9:00 — The CBC shows an hour of Royal Visit highlights — 2, 6.

C 9:00 — Another PBS biography, of the Wright brothers, stars brothers Stacy and James Keach — 9.

SATURDA YSPORTS

C 9:30 a.m. — The Wimbledon tennis men's singles finals — 2, 5, 6.

C 11:00 — Baseball, Yankees at Minnesota — 5.

C 2:00 p.m. — Wimbledon women's singles and men's doubles — 2, 5, 6.

● C 4:00 — International soccer, Arsenal vs. Canada — 2, 6.

C 6:3 0— A CBC special on Victoria's 1973 Swiftsure yacht race — 2.

Saturday Movies

10:00 a.m. — Straight, Place and Show (1938 comedy antique), the Ritz Brothers and friends. Those Ritzes were no crackers, Jack — 13.

11:00 — The CBC will show two movies in the next three hours, Alice in Wonderland and Wells Fargo. Details of both are not known — 2.

C 11:15 — Black Bart (utterly awful 1948 western), Yvonne de Carlo, Dan Duryea. I think she plays Lola Montes, and loses — 13.

12:30 noon — Storm Rider (1957 westernothing) — 11.

12:45 — Flame of New Orleans (1941 Marlene Dietrich fun) — 13.

C 1:00 p.m. — Sombrero (poorish 1953 trio of romances), Ricardo Montalban, Yvonne de Carlo, Cyd Charisse. Keep it under your hat but it ain't worth the time — 4.

2:00 — Wild Seed (1965 troubled-youth drama), Michael Parks, Celia Kaye. Good; definitely worth the time — 7.

C 2:15 — Day of Fury (routine 1956 Dale Robertson western) — 13.

4:00 — Rogues' Regiment (rotten 1948 Foreign Legion stuff), Dick Powell, Vincent Price. I've always thought the best political word was prorogue, as in end a legislature session, since they're pro roguery — 13.

C 4:30 — Spanish Affair (missable 1958 romantic drama), Richard Kiley, Carmen Sevilla. Don't make it your affair — 5.

C 6:00 — Counterfeit Traitor (good 1962 spies), William Holden, Lilli Palmer. Not a happy ending but well acted — 11.

8:00 — So Ends Our Night (good 1942 Nazis drama), Fredric March, Glenn Ford. Dated but well acted — 13.

C 9:00 — The Honey Pot (unfunny 1967 black comedy), Rex Harrison, Susan Hayward. Newish but poorly acted — 5.

C 9:00 — Flight of the Phoenix (entertaining 1965 plane-down adventure-fantasy), James Stewart, Hardy Kruger, Richard Attenborough, Ernest Borgnine, many more. Unbelievable but good fun — 8.

C 11:00 — Cincinnati Kid (1965 poker-hustler drama), Steve McQueen, Edward G. Robinson, Ann-Margret. Unbelievable and no fun — 7.

C 11:00 — Ada (1961 southern politics, truly terrible), Susan Hayward, Dean Martin, Wilfred Hyde-White. A real dawg — 12.

C 11:15 — Flight of the Phoenix (see 9:00) — 6.

11:30 — Secret Beyond the Door (fairly good 1948 chiller), Michael Redgrave, Joan Bennett. One of those mad-husband things — 13.

11:40 — Men with Wings (hammy 1938 early-fliers adventure), Fred MacMurray — 2.

11:45 — Seconds (good 1966 rejuvenation chiller), Rock Hudson — 5.

C 12:30 a.m. — Taming of the Shrew (1967 version). Not great but Liz Taylor and Richard Burton with Shakespeare can't be all bad — 8.

1:20 — The Phantom Speaks (1945 whodunit corn), Richard Arlen. He do? — 13.

Saturday Radio

11:30 a.m. — Start of a summer series of Goons reruns — CBU-FM (105.7).

1:00 p.m. — Showcase: Catherine McKinnon and the Rhythm Pals — CBU-FM.

5:00 — Showcase again — CBU (690).

8:00 — The Entertainers has a concert with Streisand, Belafonte, Anne Murray, Neil Diamond, Aretha Franklin and others — CBU-FM.

10:00 — Remember When hits 1928 — CBU-FM.

11:00 — A Toronto Symphony Orchestra concert — CBU.

Sunday Highlights

NOTE: ABC's Multiplication Rock has moved to Sundays and is seen several times in the morning and afternoon. Also on Channel 4, Charles Blair's Better World returns at 1 p.m.

C 2:00 p.m. — A profile of painter Norman Rockwell — 5.

● C 6:00 — CBS starts a series of some of its best news specials with Ed Murrow's See It Now report on the McCarthy hearings — 7, 12.

THE ACES® ON BRIDGE

TEAM CAPTAIN
World Champions

The crossruff is one of the most pleasureable hands for a declarer to play. The idea of taking tricks with low cards rather than aces and kings is a good one for all declarers, and the beginner need learn only a few rules to apply the proper techniques.

Today's interesting game deal provides a good example of the proper method of playing for a crossrufff.

Vulnerable: East-West
Dealer: South

SOUTH

♥ 10 7 5 4
♦
♣ A 4 3 2

The bidding

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of clubs.

North decided to show his excellent diamond suit before showing spade support and, over South's minimum rebid, he jumped directly to the spade game.

West chose the lead of the club jack, the dummy's queen was covered by East's king and South's ace. The play of dummy's queen was more or less automatic. If that card were ever to win a trick, it had to be at trick one.

One of the important elements of the crossruff is not to draw trumps. In a crossruff the trumps are used separately, and declarer must take steps to conserve his trumps and to prevent the defense from leading them too often.

With this in mind, declarer prepares for the crossruff by leading a heart at the second trick. If declarer had led a club instead, then the defense could lead trumps after that trick and after winning a heart trick. This would leave declarer short of the necessary trumps to make the hand.

After the defense takes the heart trick and returns a trump, declarer takes care to win in his own hand to prevent a possible third-round overruff in hearts.

It is now time for the crossruff. Declarer ruffs a heart with dummy's small trump and cashes the diamond ace. A small diamond is ruffed with declarer's trump five and the red suits crossruffed in ease and comfort.

In all, declarer scores two minor suit aces, three heart ruffs in dummy and five of his own trumps.

In the successful plan for a crossruff two rules must be followed. Don't draw trumps prematurely, and cash the side suit winners before crossruffing.

Provincial COURT

A large crowd that filled the spectators' section of Victoria Provincial Court in hopes of major developments Friday in the Marysville-Gondola case had to settle for a short list of routine matters and a lengthy legal argument about a pollution charge.

Withdrawal of a two-count Immigration Act charge against the 13 persons arrested last Saturday aboard the U.S. vessel Marysville took less than two minutes. Details are reported elsewhere in this issue.

The pollution charge had been read May 3, when the London freighter Baknes was charged with an unlawful discharge of oil or an oily mixture April 26 in Vancouver Harbor.

Trial of the charge had been due Friday but prosecutor Dermod Owen-Flood and defence lawyer Donovan Lowry asked for a delay until Sept. 18 and got it from Judge William Ostler.

The argument was over pretrial details to be supplied to the defence by the prosecution. Ostler settled it by giving each lawyer about half of what he wanted.

William Franklin Draper, 27, of Honolulu, was fined $75 by Ostler following a plea of guilty to a charge of possession of a narcotic — a small amount of marijuana found earlier Friday when Canadian customs men searched Draper after his arrival by ferry from the U.S.

In the court section of Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, a suspended sentence and a six-month probationary term were set for Andrew John Lowther, 17, of 1219 Hillside, who pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of a narcotic — about eight grams of hashish found late May 10 by Victoria police who checked a car at Cedar Hill and Ryan.

□

In traffic court, Judge Harold Alder levied a $350 fine and a partial three-month driving ban against Ernest Wilfred Riggs, 47, of Vancouver, who pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving June 27 in Victoria.

Sihanouk Resists Push For Peace Talks

Colonist Wire Services

The Cambodian government, facing rebel attacks within 10 miles of the capital and withdrawal of U.S. bombing support in 40 days, said Friday it is ready to accept an immediate ceasefire and negotiate peace with deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The announcement by Foreign Minister Long Boret reversed all previous policy statements of the government of Marshal Lon Nol, who ousted Sihanouk March 18, 1970, in a move that launched the war in Cambodia.

However, in Peking, Sihanouk rejected the "trap" of negotiations with the United States and called for urgent aid in arms and ammunition from all the "friendly countries."

Speaking at a banquet here given by Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, Sihanouk launched a veritable declaration of war against one person — U.S. President Richard Nixon — whom he accused of wanting to "unjustly condemn to death the Khmer people" in the most massive bombardments of the Indochina war, bombardments being carried out in contempt of the American people and Congress.

Chou En-lai, who spoke before Sihanouk, condemned several times the "American aggression" in Cambodia, adding that 't'he Chinese and Cambodia peoples are companions at arms and brothers who share their good and ill fortune."

Chou added that he would never visit Washington until Nationalist Chinese diplomats had left.

Long Boret outlined a six-point peace plan in the presence of the entire diplomatic corps, including U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank, in the government palace in Phnom Penho outside the palace, rebel troops were pressing an attack within nine miles of Phnom Penh, and U.S. warplanes bombing for the 122nd consecutive day were raiding rebel positions so close to the capital that the thunder of their bombs rattled windows in the conference room and occasionally drowned out Long Boret's words.

The only condition in the government plan was that Sihanouk would be regarded in any negotiations as a spokesman for the Cambodian insurgents and not, as Sihanouk claims from exile to be, the legitimate head of the Cambodian government.

In other developments:

● In San Clemente, Nixon welcomed the latest proposal for peace in Cambodia and called in China's chief envoy to discuss ways Peking can help end the lingering war in Southeast Asia.

Huang Chen, who was flown to the Western White House aboard a presidential jet and given red carpet treatment, held a two-hour meeting with presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and then met with Nixon.

● In Washington, Defence Secretary James Schlesinger defended stepped-up American bombing of Cambodia and said Nixon may have to ask Congress for renewed bombing authority after the Aug. 15 cutoff date.

● Kissinger continued to leave open a possibility that he would meet with Sihanouk on his forthcoming visit to China.

Kissinger was asked by reporters if he took seriously statements in Peking by Sihanouk that he would not talk with Kissinger.

"That is almost inconceivable to me," Kissinger replied. He said he did not want to comment about Cambodian peace negotiations now in progress.

Viet Cong:
Canada ICCS 'Snag'

Colonist Wire Services

HONG KONG — Nguyen Thi Binh, the foreign minister of the Viet Cong Provisional Revolutionary Government has slammed Canada for "paralysing the International Commission of Control and Supervision," Radio Peking reported today.

In a note sent July 2 to the chairman of the ICCS, Mrs. Binh also charged that the Canadian delegation on the ICCS "has taken actions in contravention of the letter and spirit of the Paris agreement."

The Canadian actions, the note claimed, are aimed at "covering up the serious violations of the Paris agreement on Vietnam by the U.S. and the Saigon administration."

The note pointed out that since the signing of the joint communique in Paris on June 13, 1973, the ICCS had not held a single meeting to discuss the work of the ICCS regarding the implementation of the joint communique.

Quoting a report by the Viet Cong Giaiphong press agency, the radio said the note had demanded that "the Canadian delegation should end its act of paralysing the ICCS and that the ICCS should resume its sessions as soon as possible."

Mrs. Binh had pledged in the note that "the PRG has always been ready to help and co-operate with the ICCS. It will do the same in the future with a view to creating favorable conditions for the ICCS."

Socialists Wooing Business

VANCOUVER (CP) — In his first major policy speech since he was appointed provincial minister of industry eight weeks ago, lawyer Gary Lauk called on businessmen Friday to be unafraid of the socialists and join them in enhancing social justice in B.C.

The 32 year old cabinet minister said the B.C. government would take a position in the private sector only where a region needed support and never where an area was already prospering under private business and industry.

Lauk said the recent acquisition by the government of Plateau Mills Ltd. of Vanderhoof was "supplementary and ancillary to our northwest B.C. development policy and was made necessary by the plans of private enterprise to withdraw from the area."

Hunt for Officers May Take 3 Days

SAIGON (CP) — Helicopters took off this morning for what may be a three-day search for two Canadian officers missing for 10 days in Viet Cong-controlled territory.

The hunt began with the blessing of the Viet Cong, whose spokesmen have insisted they do not know where Captains Ian Patten of Toronto and Fletcher Thomson of Ottawa are to be found.

The helicopters headed for the general area of Xuan Loc, and the searchers were expected first to visit the Viet Cong divisional headquarters there.

The searchers are expected to go to two other sites in the territory controlled by the communists before finally, on Monday, reaching the area where the officers disappeared.

Canadian authorities refused all comment and information about the search. They would not even say it had started.

The Viet Cong said Friday that safety agreements had been worked out and that a search could begin.

It was learned here that the searching helicopters are carrying two Canadian officers and two NCOs, two Hungarian Peace observers and at least three representatives of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government. It was not clear whether any South Vietnamese government representatives were aboard.

Hungary is chairman this month of the International Commission of Control and Supervision and joined the Canadians in negotiating arrangements for the search.

United States sources have said intelligence reports indicate Captains Patten and Fletcher are within the Viet Cong area in which they disappeared and are being well treated.

They disappeared June 28 during a road trip from Xuan Loc, about 40 miles northeast of Saigon. The Canadians maintained the officers were on official duties for International Commission of Control and Supervision while the Viet Cong claimed they were not.

Your Fish 'n Chips Won't Go Meatless

Victoria's fish and chip lovers can relax—they should still be eating their favorite food for at least 30 days despite a strike by members of the United Fisherman and Allied Workers Union that began throughout B.C. Friday.

That, at least, was the hopeful estimate from Edward Brady, president of the Van Isle Association of Fish Fryers.

He and fellow fish and chip shop owners went on a buying spree Thursday, stocking up on every piece of cod and halibut in sight.

Then they set off scrounging for freezer space.

They've loaded the fish into their own freezers. They've given shop assistants with freezers fish to take home and have called on friends and relatives, too, to make room for larger cuts. (See also Page 17.)

Bagged hashish, marijuana piled in Port Hardy RCMP office

All 20 Now Facing Narcotics Charges

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist Reporter

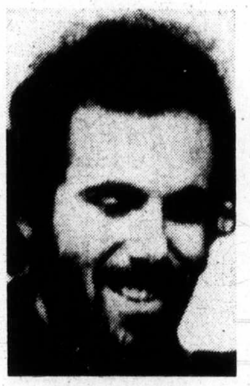
RCMP officials and federal prosecutors are now pressing two serious narcotics charges against the 20 persons arrested last weekend in northwest Vancouver Island waters in the Marysville-Gondola case.

A joint charge of conspiracy to possess cannabis resin, the legal name of hashish, for the purpose of trafficking was read against all 20 in Provincial Court at North Vancouver.

And a charge of conspiracy to import narcotics, already laid against the seven men aboard the Canadian fishboat Gondola, was broadened to include three of the men aboard the former U.S. minesweeper Marysville.

One of the three was Alexander Edward deRenzy, 37, skipper and owner of the Marysville and a well-known San Francisco blue movie maker.

The federal justice department's decision to go ahead with narcotics charges came only one day after the RCMP announced the discovery Wednesday of a big narcotics cache near where the Marysville and Gondola met for 2½ hours late June 29.



DeRenzy
. . . movie maker

It also meant the end of two Immigration Act charges in Victoria Provincial Court against the Marysville 13, one containing two counts of conspiracy to evade immigration rules and the other containing three counts of aiding in the commission of an offence against those rules.

The charges were withdrawn Friday morning by Judge William Ostler at the request of prosecutor Cecil Branson in a hearing that took less than two minutes.

The 13 then were ferried to North Vancouver by RCMP plane in two batches, the six women leaving the Victoria jail just before noon and the seven men leaving at 1:20 p.m.

Court sat late in North Vancouver so charges could be read to all accused in the presence of a battery of defence lawyers.

Four of those accused of conspiracy to import narcotics were granted bail of $5,000 and two sureties each. They were Andrew Dumyn, about 30, of Coal Harbor, B.C.; Brian Edwards Lewis, 21, Nanaimo; John Collin Thomson, 21, Vancouver; and

Currency Shuffle Rumored

FRANKFURT (AP) — The United States dollar hit new lows for the ninth consecutive day Friday, bringing turmoil to European exchanges and rumors of a new realignment of major currencies this weekend.

The head of the Swiss national bank said the monetary situation is out of control He asked how long the U.S. was prepared to "watch idly" the continued dollar slump without intervening in the market to buy dollars.

The value of a dollar dropped 3 per cent in 24 hours on the Zurich market, to a record low of 2,705 Swiss francs.

In Paris, it dropped through its pyschological barrier of four francs to an all-time low of 3.86 francs.

In West Germany, it fell so fast that several major Frankfurt banks halted dollar trading an hour early because they could find no buyers. The price was 2.24 to 2.26 German marks to $1, almost one mark less than at the beginning of the year, and nine pfennigs under Thursday.

This meant that U.S. travellers who, through most of the 1960s paid 25 cents for each mark, have to pay nearly 45 cents a mark.

On the London market, dealers reported that New York banks came into the market to sell huge amounts of dollars. There, the dollar strengthened slightly against the weak pound.

A new dollar devaluation, the third in 19 months, was ruled out in Washington by Paul Volcker, treasury undersecretary for monetary affairs.

Volcker said monetary markets "have overdone it recently" and undervalued the dollar. "I see a turnabout coming around. It's implicit in these exchanges rates getting out of line."

An increase of interest rates in the U.S., announced Thursday, had favorable impact on the money market but this was wiped out as rumors of an impending dollar devalution spread.

West German banking informants said the market was talking about these realignment possibilities:

● The U.S. dollar to be devalued 6 per cent.

● The British pound ster-

Morrow Back on Case, Indians Whoop with Joy

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Treaty Indians of the Northwest Territories Friday won their case to have an outspoken northern judge, William Morrow, remain in control of a controversial case over claims to 400,000 square miles of land.

Federal Court Judge Frank Collier dismissed an application from the federal justice department for a writ of prohibition banning Morrow from continuing with the hearing into the Indians' claim.

The judgment brought a whoop of joy from a three-man team of lawyers representing the Indian Brotherhood of the N.W.T. It had been arguing that Morrow had jurisdiction over the case.

Morrow
. . . affront

The brotherhood had wanted its claim heard by a judge who was familiar with the peculiar situations and conditions in the north.

Morrow, as the sole member of the Supreme Court of the Northwest Territories, lives in Yellowknife and travels throughout the north to hear cases.

He had called the federal manoeuvre to oust him from the case an affront to his court and a "breach of constitutional etiquette" because one judge was set against another.

Morrow now has authority to resume hearings on schedule Monday into the Indians' claim to an interest in the land, in the mineral and energy-rich Mackenzie Valley.

She Digs That Park

MURFREESBORO, Ark. (UPI) — Mrs. Robert Bland of Arlington, Tex., paid $2 to dig around in the Crater of Diamonds state park. Officials said her find was "above average."

The 2,57-carat silver white diamond she extracted Friday was worth $2,500 when cut, a park official said.

English-Only Crew Causes Flight Delay

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Vancouver-bound Air Canada DC-9 with 94 passengers on board was delayed 30 minutes Thursday because 26 French-Canadian passengers refused to continue their flight without a French-speaking cabin attendant on board.

The French-speaking passengers had boarded the flight in Montreal, but the French-speaking crew was changed in Winnipeg.

When it became apparent that no member of the new cabin crew spoke French, the 26, who were bound for Calgary, demanded a French-speaking stewardess be brought aboard.

The aircraft's captain who received the demand as the aircraft was taxiing toward the runway, elected to abort the takeoff and return to the terminal.

When it was discovered that no French-speaking stewardess was available, a French-speaking passenger agent joined the flight crew.

An airline spokesman said that some time ago Air Canada had given the federal government an undertaking that wherever possible, French-speaking personnel would be available at all Canadian points.

"It also stated that every effort would be made to serve passengers in their own language — English or French," the spokesman said.

However, he added, "where French is not — by any means — the language of the majority, the proportion of French-speaking employees to English-speaking employees is limited.

"We do our best, but in this instance a situation arose which was unfortunate — we're sorry it happened," he said.

Paperworkers set up 'information point' at mill entrance

Port Alberni Mill Shut Down

1,100 Workers Refuse To Cross Picket Line Around Pulp Mill

PORT ALBERNI — Members of the United Paperworkers International Union (UPIU) picketed MacMillan Bloedel's Port Alberni pulp mill which was shut down Friday when 1,100 workers refused to cross the picket line.

Pat O'Neal, international vice-president of the union, said it was not a picket line but just people protesting some legitimate grievances and injustices.

He said there have been unresolved grievances in relation to the steam plant and generally there have been poor communications between management and union at the mill on Vancouver Island.

B. I. Howe, vice-president of MacMillan Bloedel Pulp and Paper Group, said the mill was shut down by illegal job action. He said the company was considering appropriate action but did not elaborate. He said no meetings are scheduled and none will be.

The shutdown followed completion last weekend of industry-wide negotiations between the UPIU and the major pulp and paper companies. The previous contract expired the same weekend.

The pickets are using the slogan, No Contract, No Work, and claim the picket line was set up basically as an information point, but it is also there to back workers' demands.

Some of the loudest complaints are coming from the steam plant which supplies power to the Somass sawmill as well as the pulp mill. About 80 people have been laid off at the sawmill because of the shutdown.

Workers say the steam plant has had many promises from the union, and the company, concerning wage increases and better working conditions, but the proposals in the new settlement offer were "very distant from those they suggested."

The job parity sought by the steam engineers is that they be classed as tradesmen because "they have to attend schools, work a predetermined time before writing provincial tests, and they must assume a large responsibility for the job they have to do."

The men also complain that a second class steam engineer in ALPULP division receives $1 an hour less than a man doing the same job in Harmac.

Another complaint is lack of danger pay working around the recovery boiler system that the men say is extremely dangerous.

Pollution Hearing Told:

$13,000 Daily To Bring Mill Up to Standard

Full treatment of the effluent from its Port Alice pulp mill will cost the Rayonier company at least $13,000 a day, according to information given to a Pollution Control Board hearing Friday.

And nothing less than full treatment will meet the water quality standards the Pollution Control Branch has ordered the mill to reach by the end of 1978, said Rayonier's chief environmental engineer Ned Button.

$30 Per Ton

Button estimated that full treatment would cost the company between $28 and $30 for each ton of pulp produced. With an average daily production of about 460 tons, that's between $13,000 and $13,800 a day.

Button was testifying at the sixth day of the hearing at which the company is appealing the water quality standards for 1978. It is also requesting an extension of its deadline to meet the first stage of controls, the construction of a recovery boiler.

Near Impossible

The deadline given by the branch is Dec. 31, 1975, and Button said it would be close to impossible to meet that on the basis of technical considerations.

The company is more than willing to install such a boiler but needs a deadline extension of at least five months to complete it, he said.

Button, managing environmental engineer for the entire Rayonier conglomerate of mills across North America, said he and his staff had prepared four plans for pollution control at the milll.

Lower Reading

The first was the recovery boiler which alone would lower the reading on one pollution index from 1,235 to about 280. That figure must be reduced to 60 under present orders by the end of 1978.

Full treatment — by either one of two possible methods — would reduce the figure to 56, he said. The company had hoped a second stage of treatment which involved treating only two main elements of the effluent instead of all of it would have worked, but it reduced the figure only to 100.

Save Money

Cost of the boiler would be about $30.1 million, he said. It would, however, save the company some money once it was operating because recovered wood fibre and sulphur could be used again, and the heat generated could be used for power.

The savings could be more than $2 million a year, but the operating costs of it would still be about another $2 million a year when interest charges, depreciation, maintenance costs, insurance and taxes were taken into consideration.

Cost Increase

Overall, building the boiler would mean an increase in production costs of $11.77 for each ton of pulp produced.

Capital costs for the full treatment of effluent are not so great as that for the boiler, said Button — an extra $12.5 million for one method, $12.6 million for the other.

One method would involve the diking up of a lagoon in part of the inlet behind the mill. This would then work as a settling and aeration pond to treat the effluent.

Disposal

The second system is called the "activated sludge process" and involves having nutrients act biologically on the effluent. The difficulty with that process, Button said, is disposal of the sludge later.

He hoped the federal government would allow Rayonier to dump it far out to sea; otherwise it would have to be burnt, greatly increasing the costs.

Although the capital costs would not increase dramatically, the operating costs would be considerably higher for full treatment of effluent, said Button.

Extra Staff

Either system would require more staff to run it and more maintenance costs, and neither would increase the company's savings.

The yearly operating costs for the lagoon method would be about $4.9 million and for the sludge method about $5.3 million. This would lead to an overall per-ton cost for the lagoon method of $28.17 and for the sludge method of $30.68.

More Time

Button said the boiler could not likely be in operation by the given 1975 deadline because it would take 32 months to construct it after final plans were approved. There are now only 30 months before the given date.

For example, it took two years just to get delivery of a necessary turbo-generator.

Button said he felt the 1978 controls were too strict. He disagreed with the branch's policy of not differentiating between dissolving-sulphite mills (like Port Alice), kraft pulp mills, sulphite paper mills, and kraft paper mills in determining water quality standards.

He noted that to meet standards many kraft mills needed to reduce their effluent by only 10 per cent to 30 per cent. Sulphite paper mills had to reduce theirs by only 60 per cent.

But dissolving-sulphite pulp mills had to reduce theirs by at least 80 per cent, and possibly as much as 97 per cent if they didn't have a recovery system.

Earlier in the day, Roger Tollefson, an environmental researcher for Rayonier, concluded his testimony after being on the witness stand for more than six hours..

Fish Kills

Tollefson admitted there had been "several" fish kills at the mills this year and over the past few years. He said he believed the cause of the kills was hydrogen sulfide gas which bubbled to the surface of the water when Neroutsos Inlet near the mill was dredged to clear it of sludge.

He said that to keep the dissolved oxygen levels in the water at a proper level the company was having to cut back 30 per cent and more during the summer, but wouldn't have to cut back at all during the winter.

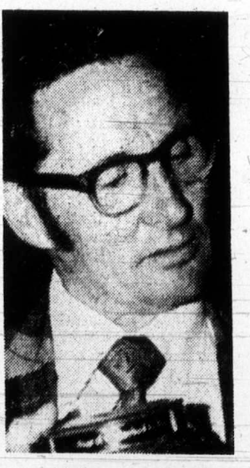
The hearing, before board chairman Valter Raudsepp and two other environmental experts will continue July 16 at the Victoria Law Courts.

Royston To Appeal Utilities Decision

By DONNA CLEMENTS
Colonist Correspondent

COURTENAY — A recent decision of the public utilities commission, which awarded Cumberland a rate of 26 cents per thousand gallons of water sold to Royston will be appealed by Royston trustees.

The word came from Sid Donaldson, secretary of the Royston Improvement District.



Moncrief
. . . 'bled to death.'

Cumberland's Mayor Bill Moncrief says "This upsets me no end. I don't understand their reasoning. They know the shape of our system up in our area. We've been doing what we could with the money coming from the people of Cumberland, which incidentally is equivalent to about 43 cents per thousand gallons. It's a serious situation, we lost a dam last year because of its age, no maintenance for many years on it, we've got two more major ones. Big ones above it and if we don't get up there this summer and get the necessary work done this could be a very, very serious situation."

The decision of the PUC came after a battle of some four years between the two areas over bulk water costs. Up to the present, Royston has been paying Cumberland eight cents per thousand gallons up to the first 50 million gallons and then five cents.

"Ever since 1970, since we've been trying to get this increase from Royston on a fair and equitable basis, we've explained to them we want to upgrade the system so that we have good quality water, sufficient water, no sprinkling regulations. I just don't understand their reasoning," Moncrief said.

The mayor said Cumberland can't do a thing this year without money. He said a study was planned and it had cost the village $5,000 in legal fees already. He said it had been agreed between the two areas that whatever decision was brought down by the PUC would be accepted by both sides.

Moncrief added that in a conversation between Cumberland municipal clerk John Wilson and Donaldson, following the PUC decision, no suggestion had been made about an appeal.

Moncrief says the only avenue he can see is a direct approach to the minister of municipal affairs and ask him to intervene one way or the other.

Moncrief said if the PUC decision had been accepted by Royston, within three to five years there would have been completed, "brand new system."

The dam which was lost in flooding conditions last year cost the village $120,000 and the government only gave $45,000 to help with repairs.

"Cumberland is going to be bled to death one way or the other, Moncrief said.

Smorg Tops Off Award Ceremonies

DUNCAN — Ernie Harris, graduate of the occupational classes at Mount Prevost junior high school, was winner of the $50 bursary, presented for the first time by the Duncan Kinsmen Club — to a student planning to attend vocational school.

About 100 parents, friends and students attended the recent awards day ceremonies that included a specially prepared smorgasbord served at the school and arranged by the home economics students.

Head table guests included Miss Priscilla Joe, one of the graduating students who was mistress of ceremonies for the event.

Miss Joe won the work experience award, being highly commended by the management of each business where she worked for a time.

Danna Ohman was presented with the sewing award and Sherry Werk won the cooking award. Most improved boy and girl in the classes were, respectively, Carl Joe and Theresa Robinson, and Ray Lundahl was the most improved physical education student.

Wolves Roaming Around Valley

COURTENAY — Wolves roaming around parts of the Comox Valley are killing cattle and causing general concern.

As recent as Wednesday morning, a purebred Holstein cow belonging to Black Creek farmer Delton Henrich was killed by a wolf, according to the owner.

Henrich said the cow had calved the previous day and the wolf worried her until she fell to the ground. Then the animal gorged itself on the hindquarters while the cow bled to death.

Game Warden Jim Osman has some doubts however. He feels it is possible the cow died from natural causes and dogs ate the carcass. He is not ready to make a statement at this time.

Farmers in the area, including the Henrich family, have sighted large grey wolves running packs of up to six.

The animal was valued at $1,300, Henrich said.

Meanwhile Osman was busy chasing and killing a female cougar, wounded when it was treed by Jack Clifford's dog.

The animal came out from a treed area on the Clifford farm on the Lake Trail Road. A 13-year-old daughter of the Clifford's was walking in the area when the cat advanced towards her from a clump of trees. It was later killed by Osman.

Duncan Gets Tax Break On Law Costs

DUNCAN — The City of Duncan no longer has to pay police and law court costs which may save the taxpayers here as much as $100,000 next year.

Mayor Jim Quaife was told that "the police service will continue as it has been in the past and that the high standard will be maintained." Duncan has been exempted from paying for the law administration because its population is below the 5,000 mark.

The city's 1973 budget for policing and law enforcement amounted to $110,000 and the new status will save the city between $40,000 and $50,000 this year. Until the beginning of this month the city had to pay for seven officers plus law court costs. "Next year the benefit will be between $80,000 and $100,000 which could mean a decrease in the mill rate," Quaife said.

He added: "I am happy. I think it is an indication that the senior government recognizes its responsibility for police protection in the smaller communities. I hope that council will wisely decide as to how to spend the money. I would like to see some of the saved money go into a contingency fund in case we need some special equipment. And I think some should go into a surplus fund to avoid a tax increase next year."

Fishing Strike

Trollers Land To Decide Next Move

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Troll-boat owners will be meeting up and down the Vancouver Island coast today to decide what action they should take in the light of a strike Friday by 7,000 members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union.

The trollers, which have been fishing since the salmon season opened April 15, have been arriving in port this week to unload the most recent catch before the strike closed fishing plants as well as idling net-fishing boats.

It is expected that it will be Monday or Tuesday before any of the trollers put to sea again, although Merv Ellis, manager of the 750-member Pacific Troller Association says that association is in a position to see that fishing continues, if that is what members want.

"We are the largest deep-sea fishing fleet in the world and we are capable of making arrangements for the marketing of our products and obtaining all the supplies necessary to properly conduct our business outside of Canada," said Ellis.

As the noon strike deadline neared and late boats were unloaded, salmon prices went sky high.

Coho salmon, which on Wednesday were bringing 81 cents a pound, was up to $1.10 a pound as buyers scrambled for business and springs were bringing up to $1.75 a pound, according to Ellis.

However, spokesmen for the UFAWU say that the top fish prices are not of prime concern to the 3,500 net fishermen out on strike for better minimum prices.

It is the prices at the bottom of the scale that they are arguing about, more than anything else.

They have been asking for 24 cents a pound this year for pinks and 28½ cents next year, while the Fisheries Association of B.C. has offered 18½ and 19¼ cents a pound.

There is also a disagreement about the price of salmon roe, with the fishermen asking for $1.50 a pound this year and $1.75 a pound next year and pointing to overseas areas where companies are paying $3 a pound for the product. The association does not wish to negotiate a price for roe.

Also involved in the strike are about 500 tendermen — the men who pack the catch from ship to shore — and 3,500 shoreworkers who are asking for higher wages and fringe benefits.

In Victoria between 60 and 70 workers at B.C. Packers plant at Ogden Point are involved, and there are also three small non-union fish plants — Oakland Industries, Dennis Shellfish and Coast Shellfish, but the UFAWU has said it will picket them if the attempt to process fish.

UFAWU president Homer Stevens estimates that it will be about a week before the effects of the strike are noticed in the market place.

He said stores of fresh fish might run out in a few days in some places, but that it will be 10 days to two weeks before the effect of the strike on supplies of frozen or canned fish becomes noticeable.

Stevens said wages are a major issue for shoreworkers, most of whom earn less than $3.50 an hour.

Shoreworkers want increases of 80 cents an hour this year and next, with equal pay for women, and they have been offered 60 cents an hour this year and 50 cents an hour next.

Tendermen earning between $583 and $784 a month under the old contract are asking for a $160 monthly increase this year and $120 next year.

Reid Centre Misses Deadline

A legal oversight has given Victoria city council a chance to have another good look at the controversial Reid Centre proposal.

A year-old contract between the city and developer J. A. Reid over the $20 million-plus development has been invalidated by Reid's failure to comply with a lot consolidation clause in the contract, it was learned Thursday.

Under the terms of the contract, Reid was required to consolidate the two parcels of land on Wharf Street within 90 days of the contract being signed last June. So far he has failed to do this.

Described by city zoning chairman Ald. Mike Young as "a pure and simple oversight," the omission was noticed recently by planning staff when Reid sought a building permit for his two-tower proposal. It was then discovered that the land-use contract had been invalid for more than nine months.

Reid will now have to ask council for an extension of the original 90-day period. Mayor Peter Pollen said the matter would be discussed at next week's council meeting.

He said city planner Geoffrey Greenhalgh had written Reid's solicitors informing them that, as no lot consolidation plan had been deposited with the land registery office, "it would appear that no valid contract exists between your client and the city."

Lot consolidation is not a complicated procedure, indicated a senior city official, and involves only around $200 worth of land surveyor's fees. It is always written into land-use contracts because the city does not want the original owner who negotiated a contract with the city to be able to sell off the lots involved to two or more separate developers. A zoning bylaw requirement also prohibits one structure to be built on two distinct lots.

It is not necessary for Reid to renegotiate a land-use contract with the city, said the official, but only to apply for an extension of the 90-day land-consolidation period.

"His case is not helped by the fact that he's late in applying, but that doesn't put him out of the ball game altogether."

Young said he did not think "the city should take an advantage of a technicality," especially as the city had not been "prejudiced" by Reid's solicitors' failure to consolidate.

However, now that the city had the opportunity, he wanted council to press for some agreement from Reid over how he "will organize the phasing of his development."

Young said it appeared Reid intended only to build one of the two towers in the proposal at this time—the apartment tower—leaving the other structure until later. "We don't want a half-constructed development that looks awful."

Pollen said it was not a question of council taking advantage of a technical error. A contract calls for "specific performance" of certain clauses, he said, and the lot-consolidation clause was hardly "insignificant," otherwise "why would it be in the contract?"

Reid was not available for comment as to why his solicitors had failed to comply with the contract. A spokesman said Reid was "a busy man" and "he has nothing to say regarding this matter."

Meantime, negotiations continue between the city and Imperial Oil Ltd. over the purchase of the Causeway Garage site at Government and Wharf—an important element of the city's land assembly plan for Inner Harbor renewal.

A meeting scheduled for June 27 between city's lands committee and Imperial Oil representatives was postponed and as far as is known has not yet been rescheduled. It is believed that a meeting at staff level will be held today.

Rail Section Washed Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — A section of the B.C. Railway's main line 58 miles south of Fort Nelson has been washed out and traffic over the line has been halted, a spokesman said. Repairs have been hampered by continuing heavy rains in the area, he said, and probably would not be completed until the last week in July.

Skydivers on Prowl For Safer Landing

By CHRIS BIRD
Colonist Reporter

Members of the Victoria Skydiving Club have a problem — there is no place for them to land.

The transport ministry, acting on complaints from B.C. Hydro, has ordered the club to stop jumping until members find a new drop zone.

The complaints followed two incidents in the last two months in which parachutists had narrow escapes when their 'chutes became entangled in power lines during jumps into a field in the Brentwood Bay area near West Saanich Road.

Power failures resulted in both cases.

The man responsible for the order is regional controller of civil aviation, William Johnson.

He said Thursday night his concern in giving the order was safety. He had nothing against parachutists, he said. In fact, he had parachuted out of an aircraft himself.

"But I was doing it for real, not for fun," he said.

He had been a pilot during the war and had been forced to bail out of an aircraft.

Skydivers president Al Eimer said the two accidents on May 5 and June 10, were the first the club had had in three years of operation and between 3,000 and 4,000 jumps.

He said finding another place near Victoria without wires in the way would be almost impossible.

He said transport ministry officials had refused to meet with the club until another place to jump had been found.

He said the attitude of one official had been "the only time I'll talk to you is when you have another place to jump."

Johnson said that was putting it too strongly.

Pete Fassbender of the Canadian Sport Parachutists Association, the parent body of the Victoria Skydivers, said he had talked to transport ministry officials who had promised to send the club a special map to help in a search for a new drop zone.

Super Run

Viet Cong: Canada ICCS 'Snag'

Colonist Wire Services

HONG KONG — Nguyen Thi Binh, the foreign minister of the Viet Cong Provisional Revolutionary Government, has slammed Canada for "paralysing the International Commission of Control and Supervision," Radio Peking reported today.

In a note sent July 2 to the chairman of the ICCS, Mrs. Binh also charged that the Canadian delegation on the ICCS "has taken actions in contravention of the letter and spirit of the Paris agreement."

The Canadian actions, the note claimed, are aimed at "covering up the serious violations of the Paris agreement on Vietnam by the U.S. and the Saigon administration."

The note pointed out that since the signing of the joint communique in Paris on June 13, 1973, the ICCS had not held a single meeting to discuss the work of the ICCS regarding the implementation of the joint communique.

Quoting a report by the Viet Cong Giaiphong press agency, the radio said the note had demanded that "the Canadian delegation should end its act of paralysing the ICCS and that the ICCS should resume its sessions as soon as possible."

Mrs. Binh had pledged in the note that "the PRG has always been ready to help and co-operate with the ICCS. It will do the same in the future with a view to creating favorable conditions for the ICCS."

The Cambodian government, facing rebel attacks within 10 miles of the capital and withdrawal of U.S. bombing support in 40 days, said Friday it is ready to accept an immediate ceasefire and negotiate peace with deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The announcement by Foreign Minister Long Boret reversed all previous policy statements of the government of Marshal Lon Nol, who ousted Sihanouk March 18, 1970, in a move that launched the war in Cambodia.

However, in Peking, Sihanouk rejected the "trap" of negotiations with the United States and called for urgent aid in arms and ammunition from all the "friendly countries."

Speaking at a banquet here given by Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, Sihanouk launched a veritable declaration of war against one person — U.S. President Richard Nixon — whom he accused of wanting to "unjustly condemn to death the Khmer people" in the most massive bombardments of the Indochina war, bombardments being carried out in contempt of the American people and Congress.

Chou En-lai, who spoke before Sihanouk, condemned several times the "American aggression" in Cambodia, adding that "the Chinese and Cambodia peoples are companions at arms and brothers who share their good and ill fortune."

Chou added that he would never visit Washington until Nationalist Chinese diplomats had left.

Long Boret outlined a six-point peace plan in the presence of the entire diplomatic corps, including U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank, in the government palace in Phnom Penh. Outside the palace, rebel troops were pressing an attack within nine miles of Phnom Penh, and U.S. warplanes bombing for the 122nd consecutive day were raiding rebel positions so close to the capital that the thunder of their bombs rattled windows in the conference room and occasionally drowned out Long Boret's words.

The only condition in the government plan was that Sihanouk would be regarded in any negotiations as a spokesman for the Cambodian insurgents and not, as Sihanouk claims from exile to be, the legitimate head of the Cambodian government.

In other developments:

- In San Clemente, Nixon welcomed the latest proposal for peace in Cambodia and called in China's chief envoy to discuss ways Peking can help end the lingering war in Southeast Asia.

Huang Chen, who was flown to the Western White House aboard a presidential jet and given red carpet treatment, held a two-hour meeting with presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and then met with Nixon.

- In Washington, Defence Secretary James Schlesinger defended stepped-up American bombing of Cambodia and said Nixon may have to ask Congress for renewed bombing authority after the Aug. 15 cutoff date.
- Kissinger continued to leave open a possibility that he would meet with Sihanouk on his forthcoming visit to China.

Kissinger was asked by reporters if he took seriously statements in Peking by Sihanouk that he would not talk with Kissinger.

"That is almost inconceivable to me," Kissinger replied. He said he did not want to comment about Cambodian peace negotiations now in progress.

Hunt for Officers May Take 3 Days

SAIGON (CP) — Helicopters took off this morning for what may be a three-day search for two Canadian officers missing for 10 days in Viet Cong-controlled territory.

The hunt began with the blessing of the Viet Cong, whose spokesmen have insisted they do not know where Captains Ian Patten of Toronto and Fletcher Thomson of Ottawa are to be found.

The helicopters headed for the general area of Xuan Loc, and the searchers were expected first to visit the Viet Cong divisional headquarters there.

The searchers are expected to go to two other sites in the territory controlled by the communists before finally, on Monday, reaching the area where the officers disappeared.

Canadian authorities refused all comment and information about the search. They would not even say it had started.

The Viet Cong said Friday that safety agreements had been worked out and that a search could begin.

It was learned here that the searching helicopters are carrying two Canadian officers and two NCOs, two Hungarian Peace observers and at least three representatives of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government. It was not clear whether any South Vietnamese government representatives were aboard.

Hungary is chairman this month of the International Commission of Control and Supervision and joined the Canadians in negotiating arrangements for the search.

United States sources have said intelligence reports indicate Patten and Fletcher are within the Viet Cong area in which they disappeared and are being well treated.

They disappeared June 28 during a road trip from Xuan Loc, about 40 miles northeast of Saigon. The Canadians maintained the officers were on official duties for International Commission of Control and Supervision while the Viet Cong claimed they were not.

Your Fish 'n Chips Won't Go Meatless

Victoria's fish and chip lovers can relax—they should stilll be eating their favorite food for at least 30 days despite a strike by members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union that began throughout B.C. Friday.

That, at least, was the hopeful estimate from Edward Brady, president of the Van Isle Association of Fish Fryers.

He and fellow fish and chip shop owners went on a buying spree Thursday, stocking up on every piece of cod and halibut in sight.

Then they set off scrounging for freezer space.

They've loaded the fish into their own freezers. They've given shop assistants with freezers fish to take home and have called on friends and relatives, too, to make room for larger cuts. (See also Page 17.)

Socialists Wooing Business

VANCOUVER (CP) — In his first major policy speech since he was appointed provincial minister of industry eight weeks ago, lawyer Gary Lauk called on businessmen Friday to be unafraid of the socialists and join them in enhancing social justice in B.C.

The 32-year-old cabinet minister said the B.C. government would take a position in the private sector only where a region needed support and never where an area was already prospering under private business and industry.

Lauk said the recent acquisition by the government of Plateau Mills Ltd. of Vanderhoof was "supplementary and ancillary to our northwest B.C. development policy and was made necessary by the plans of private enterprise to withdraw from the area."

Currency Shuffle Rumored

FRANKFURT (AP) — The United States dollar hit new lows for the ninth consecutive day Friday, bringing turmoil to European exchanges and rumors of a new realignment of major currencies this weekend.

The head of the Swiss national bank said the monetary situation is out of control He asked how long the U.S. was prepared to "watch idly" the continued dollar slump without intervening in the market to buy dollars.

The value of a dollar dropped 3 per cent in 24 hours on the Zurich market, to a record low of 2.705 Swiss francs.

In Paris, it dropped through its pyschological barrier of four francs to an all-time low of 3.86 francs.

In West Germany, it fell so fast that several major Frankfurt banks halted dollar trading an hour early because they could find no buyers. The price was 2.24 to 2.26 German marks to $1, almost one mark less than at the beginning of the year, and nine pfennigs under Thursday.

This meant that U.S. travellers who, through most of the 1960s paid 25 cents for each mark, have to pay nearly 45 cents a mark.

On the London market, dealers reported that New York banks came into the market to sell huge amounts of dollars. There, the dollar strengthened slightly against the weak pound.

A new dollar devaluation, the third in 19 months, was ruled out in Washington by Paul Volcker, treasury undersecretary for monetary affairs.

Volcker said monetary markets "have overdone it recently" and undervalued the dollar. "I see a turnabout coming around. It's implicit in these exchange rates getting out of line."

An increase of interest rates in the U.S., announced Thursday, had favorable impact on the money market but this was wiped out as rumors of an impending dollar devaluation spread.

West German banking informants said the market was talking about these realignment possibilities:

- The U.S. dollar to be devalued 6 per cent.
- The British pound ster-

Bagged hashish, marijuana piled in Port Hardy RCMP office

All 20 Now Facing Narcotics Charges

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist Reporter

RCMP officials and federal prosecutors are now pressing two serious narcotics charges against the 20 persons arrested last weekend in northwest Vancouver Island waters in the Marysville-Gondola case.

A joint charge of conspiracy to possess cannabis resin, the legal name of hashish, for the purpose of trafficking was read against all 20 in Provincial Court at North Vancouver.

And a charge of conspiracy to import narcotics, already laid against the seven men aboard the Canadian fishboat Gondola, was broadened to include three of the men aboard the former U.S. minesweeper Marysville.

One of the three was Alexander Edward deRenzy, 37, skipper and owner of the Marysville and a well-known San Francisco blue movie maker.

The federal justice department's decision to go ahead with narcotics charges came only one day after the RCMP announced the discovery Wednesday of a big narcotics cache near where the Marysville and Gondola met for 2½ hours late June 29.

It also meant the end of two Immigration Act charges in Victoria Provincial Court against the Marysville 13, one containing two counts of conspiracy to evade immigration rules and the other containing three counts of aiding in the commission of an offence against those rules.

The charges were withdrawn Friday morning by Judge William Ostler at the request of prosecutor Cecil Branson in a hearing that took less than two minutes.

The 13 then were ferried to North Vancouver by RCMP plane in two batches, the six women leaving the Victoria jail just before noon and the seven men leaving at 1:20 p.m.

Court sat late in North Vancouver so charges could be read to all accused in the presence of a battery of defence lawyers.

Four of those accused of conspiracy to import narcotics were granted bail of $5,000 and two sureties each. They were Andrew Dumyn, about 30, of Coal Harbor, B.C.; Brian Edwards Lewis, 21, Nanaimo; John Collin Thomson, 21, Vancouver; and

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Treaty Indians of the Northwest Territories Friday won their case to have an outspoken northern judge, William Morrow, remain in control of a controversial case over claims to 400,000 square miles of land.

Federal Court Judge Frank Collier dismissed an application from the federal justice department for a writ of prohibition banning Morrow from continuing with the hearing into the Indians' claim.

The judgment brought a whoop of joy from a three-man team of lawyers representing the Indian Brotherhood of the N.W.T. It had been arguing that Morrow had jurisdiction over the case.

The brotherhood had wanted its claim heard by a judge who was familiar with the peculiar situations and conditions in the north.

Morrow, as the sole member of the Supreme Court of the Northwest Territories, lives in Yellowknife and travels throughout the north to hear cases.

He had called the federal manoeuvre to oust him from the case an affront to his court and a "breach of constitutional etiquette" because one judge was set against another.

Morrow now has authority to resume hearings on schedule Monday into the Indians' claim to an interest in the land, in the mineral and energy-rich Mackenzie Valley.

She Digs That Park

MURFREESBORO, Ark. (UPI) — Mrs. Robert Bland of Arlington, Tex., paid $2 to dig around in the Crater of Diamonds state park. Officials said her find was "above average."

The 2.57-carat silver white diamond she extracted Friday was worth $2,500 when cut, a park official said.

English-Only Crew Causes Flight Delay

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Vancouver-bound Air Canada DC-9 with 94 passengers on board was delayed 30 minutes Thursday because 26 French-Canadian passengers refused to continue their flight without a French-speaking cabin attendant on board.

The French-speaking passengers had boarded the flight in Montreal, but the French-speaking crew was changed in Winnipeg.

When it became apparent that no member of the new cabin crew spoke French, the 26, who were bound for Calgary, demanded a French-speaking stewardess be brought aboard.

The aircraft's captain, who received the demand as the aircraft was taxiing toward the runway, elected to abort the takeoff and return to the terminal.

When it was discovered that no French-speaking stewardess was available, a French-speaking passenger agent joined the flight crew.

An airline spokesman said that some time ago Air Canada had given the federal government an undertaking that wherever possible, French-speaking personnel would be available at all Canadian points.

"It also stated that every effort would be made to serve passengers in their own language — English or French," the spokesman said.

However, he added, "where French is not — by any means — the language of the majority, the proportion of French-speaking employees to English-speaking employees is limited.

"We do our best, but in this instance a situation arose which was unfortunate — we're sorry it happened," he said.
